BEER TAX BATTLE SHIFTS TO SENATE; HEARING SLATED

House Refuses To Condemn 11 Members for Doing State Work During Summer, Votes Its Confidence Unanimously

BALLOT EXPECTED ON CIVIL SERVICE

Opponents of Increased Beverage Levy Granted Audience Following Confiscation Charges.

The fight over the Rivers-sponsored proposal to double the tax on beer shifted yesterday to the senate, where Chairman John Neely, of the temperance committee, announced opponents to the measure would be given a public hearing before action is taken by his committee.

The hearing was granted at the request of beer dealers and distributors, who claim the tax is confiscatory.

Both the senate and house of representatives spent yesterday in routine business, the former taking up the Ennis bill creating a state civil service commission and putting all state employees under its provisions and the latter engaging in sharp debate over acceptance by representatives of salaries from the state for services performed since the regular session.

After refusing, 133 to 27, to condemn 11 of its members for doing state work during the summer, the house voted, 114 to 0, to express its "confidence in the integrity of those named," who included Representative Clement E. Sutton, of Wilkes county, and Representative Wilmer D. Lanier, of Richmond county. Representative Sutton served as special counsel for the Department of Public Safety and is credited with setting up the highway patrol, while Lanier served as special counsel for the new state Department of Labor for several months while the department was being set up.

The senate failed to complete work on the Ennis bill during the day but was expected to take a final vote on it today. The only major change in the bill was lowering of the salary of the personnel director. Ennis had fixed the salary at $5,000 annually. The senate cut it to $3,000 per year.

Two other important committee actions were taken during the day. The committee on public highways voted to report favorably on the administration bill abolishing the present bus and truck maintenance tag. A companion measure, lowering the tag price for private passenger cars and small trucks and increasing the prices of tags for large trucks and buses has not been acted on by the committee, but action is expected shortly.

In announcing the hearing on the beer bill, Neely said he had been informed by J. P. McGrath, representing the distributors, and Paul Wilson, representing retailers, that the high tax will kill the beer business.

The house took up the matter of its members accepting salaries and expenses from the state after State Auditor Tom Wisdom had supplied a list requested earlier in the session.

The report on the 11 said Lanier, who helped establish the unemployment compensation bureau, received $2,293.33 salary and $186.09 travel expense from that bureau, and $65.75 salary and $37.93 travel expense from the Industrial Board of the Department of Labor.

It said Sutton, in establishing the state highway patrol, got $1,000.

Mehre, Georgia Grid Coach, Quits After 14 Years' Service

Tears in Eyes as He Resigns
'for Future' of His 'Second Alma Mater.'

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Harry J. Mehre, a Notre Dame star of the early twenties, tendered his resignation today as head football coach of the University of Georgia.

Dr. W. O. Payne, faculty chairman of athletics, said the athletic board would act on the resignation next week, probably Monday or Tuesday. He added that it was doubtful a new coach would be named then.

Critical alumni had urged a change in coaches. Only a year ago the "wolves" howled when the Georgia team was unimpressive in its early games.

Last winter, the Georgia team received national recognition for staging the season's "greatest comeback" in tying Fordham and beating Florida, Tulane and Georgia Tech. After a midseason letdown this fall, the team defeated Tulane and tied Auburn and Georgia Tech.

"I believe that, for the future of Georgia and its athletic teams, and under the present condition, it is best that I should sever my relationship," Mehre said in a letter to Dr. W. O. Payne, faculty chairman of athletics.

The resignation was handed to Dr. Payne a few minutes after Mehre had attended the annual luncheon given here to members of the football squad and the coaching staff. Neither he nor university officials commented.

Tears rolled down Mehre's cheeks as he talked with newspapermen later. He did not, however, refer to any specific reason for his resignation or announce his plans for the future.

His team has one more game to play, with Miami, at Miami, on Friday night, December 10.

"You will, of course," Mehre's letter said, "appreciate the fact that there is to be another game played, and I do not want my resignation to in any way interfere with that game, and assure that it will not. I suggest that my resignation become effective January 1, 1938."

University authorities declined to discuss a possible successor.

Since becoming head coach in 1923, Mehre's teams have won 58 games, lost 34 and tied six. He was line coach for four years before succeeding George (Kid) Woodruff at the helm.

AMERICAN PARTY ISOLATED IN CHINA

U. S. Launch Seized by Nipponese Returned to Owners With Apologies.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 2.—(Thursday)—(AP)—Alarm was felt here today for the safety of 13 Americans, mostly women and children, marooned in an isolated region in the center of Chinese-Japanese fighting.

Mission headquarters and the United States consulate general expressed anxiety after more than a week had passed without word from the Americans.

Last at Rendezvous.

They were last known to be in a missionary rendezvous at Mokanshan, near the Chekiang-Anhui province border. Chinese and Japanese have been fighting on all sides of Mokanshan and deserters from the Chinese army turned bandits, have been reported looting there.

The Americans are Professor and Mrs. D. L. Sherertz and four children, Mrs. W. H. Park, Hawthorn, Fla.; Mr. L. S. Sone and two children, Chillicothe, Texas; Miss L. B. Edgar, Lawrence, Kan.; Miss G. S. McCulloch, Jackson, Mich.; and Miss E. J. Peterson, New Sweden, Maine.

An American-owned steamer, seized by Japanese sailors Tuesday, was returned to its owners yesterday with apologies.

Foreigners Warned.

Highest Chinese authorities today indicated all foreigners should leave Nanking as soon as possible in the face of Japanese military advances toward the emptying Chinese capital.

Chinese reports from Nanking said the capital's defenders had sunk new boats across the Yangtze and blown up all roads and bridges, expecting the Japanese to attack swiftly.

FAREWELL ATTACK BY O'HARA KILLED

Judge Appoints Receiver
for Turfman's Paper,
Rules 'No Taking Sides.'

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 1.—(AP)—A blistering farewell statement by Turfman Walter E. O'Hara as publisher of the Providence Star-Tribune was "killed" today by a superior court judge while presses rolled and newspaper boys waited to carry it throughout the city.

Yesterday, federal income tax officials placed liens on the property of O'Hara and his wife, alleging non-payment of the third and fourth quarterly installments of their 1936 taxes.

After looking at proofs of the 600-word statement in which O'Hara struck out again at his foes, Judge O'Connell gave the order to withhold it from publication.

Quickly the paper's presses were stopped, and the publisher's valedictory was withdrawn from the Star-Tribune's home edition.

Editorial employees at first said none of the papers had "hit the street," but reports came from some sections of the city that a few had read the published statement in the paper.

The dramatic development came a day after O'Hara, who has been embroiled with Governor Quinn in a battle centering around O'Hara's Narraquasset track, went into superior court and asked appointment of a temporary receiver for his newspaper.

Judge O'Connell today made it plain the paper must steer clear of controversy while under the court's wing.

"Inasmuch as O'Hara had already got out," he declared, "and a receiver was running the paper, he should run it without taking sides because the receiver is responsible as an officer of the court and the court can't take sides."

Governor Rivers conferred with the President's secretary during the day and announced the conference between the President and the governors of the nine southern states, scheduled for Warm Springs, would not take place in Georgia but would be held in Washington January 12, when all Democratic governors in the nation have been invited to the national capital to attend the Jackson Day dinner.

The dedication of Gainesville's civic center, to be known as Roosevelt Square, will be carried out as planned.

Senators Walter F. George and Richard B. Russell Jr., as well as Governor Rivers, have important places on the program.

Informed of the time for the President's visit, the general assembly voted to declare a state holiday next Wednesday. The capital will be closed.

Immediately following the program the President will leave on his special train for Washington.

New, Safe Drug To Eliminate Pains Of Childbirth Described to Doctors

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 1.—(AP)—A new anesthetic for the safe elimination of the pains of childbirth was reported today before the Southern Medical Association as the latest approach to the "perfect" drug.

Two St. Louis, Mo., physicians, Dr. Frederick W. Emmert and Dr. S. A. Goldschmidt, announced that they had used the preparation, known as "sigmodal," in the delivery of 200 babies without harm to either the mother or infant. Other physicians declared they had used the anesthetic with almost identical results in 100 cases.

Sigmodal is injected into the sigmoid and is quickly absorbed within 10 to 15 minutes, producing a

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Mayor F. H. La Guardia, chief executive of the nation's largest city, historically the greatest metropolitan stronghold of the Democrats, formally has become a member of the American Labor party, cutting any last thin tie with his old nominal Republican affiliation.

This was disclosed today—29 days from the time he registered under the labor party's clasped-hands emblem and 29 days, too, from the election which returned him to city hall as the first man ever to beat the Democratic machine twice in a row.

Mental Kinship.

His mental kinship with the labor party long had been obvious, but his association with it as a party member, and as a rising national political figure, stirred quick discussion as to what he had in mind for the future.

There have been published speculations that he might be the spearhead of a national third party movement in 1940—speculations recalling his past association with middle-western La Follette progressives in attempts to form a Farmer-Labor political federation.

Membership in a third party already existing, though substantially limited at present to the metropolitan area, would aid him in any plan to step out nationally, independent of the old parties.

Question Unanswered.

What the regular Republican organization, which strongly supported him in the recent municipal campaign along with the city fusion, progressive and Communist parties, would think of his new affiliation was unanswered.

Although he has supported most of President Roosevelt's New Deal, he is in no high political debt to the administration. Its chief political officer, James A. Farley, opposed him for re-election.

F. D. R. WILL VISIT GAINESVILLE DEC. 8

President To Attend Fete
at Roosevelt Square;
Meets Governors Jan. 12

President Roosevelt yesterday fixed next Wednesday afternoon for his visit to Gainesville and that city's special Roosevelt memorial committee immediately announced that the celebration commemorating Gainesville's rise from the ruins of its tornado disaster of April, 1936, had been set to start at 3:30 p. m. on that date.

Official announcement of the President's visit was made by Edgar B. Dunlap, after a conference by telephone with Marvin H. McIntyre, the President's secretary.

It is understood the President plans to enter Georgia early next Tuesday and go directly to Warm Springs, where he will spend Tuesday night and the early part of Wednesday, enroute for Gainesville just before noon.

He also stated, when asked if Coleman's remarks about the Longino-Ragsdale faction in the recent commission race had anything to do with the discharge, that "it certainly didn't do him any good."

Vice President Gets Tips on How To Bring Down Deer

CUT IN EXPENSES BEGUN BY FULTON

Two County Employees
Dismissed and Removal of Third Is Ratified.

Fulton government economies in prospect since adjournment of the September-October grand jury began in earnest yesterday as county commissioners dismissed two county employees and ratified previous dismissal of a third at its regular December meeting.

At the same time Commission Chairman J. A. Ragsdale predicted "a number of other dismissals will be made between now and the end of the year."

The commissioners voted to leave salaries of all elective department heads at the same level as this year.

By the motion Sheriff J. L. Lowry, Clerk of Court J. W. Simmons, Tax Collector T. E. Suttles, Tax Receiver Guy A. Moore and Ordinary T. H. Jeffries will continue to receive $6,000 per year.

Two Are Discharged.

J. D. Thomason, superintendent of the county garage, and Charles Collins, farm co-ordinator, were discharged by unanimous consent of the commissioners and the offices which they held abolished.

Commissioner Longino, who made the dismissal motion, said "the offices were unnecessary to the county government."

Earlier in the day it was learned Henry Coleman, deputy in the office of the county tax investigator, had been discharged. The commission ratified his dismissal unanimously on motion of Commissioner Longino.

Coleman's discharge, Longino said, was based on assertions his private business in East Point took up too much of his time, and that the tax investigating staff was built up to a point where it no longer needed his services.

Further Cuts Seen.

He also stated, when asked if Coleman's remarks about the Longino-Ragsdale faction in the recent commission race had anything to do with the discharge, that "it certainly didn't do him any good."

Garner Gets Buck in Hunt With Senators

Fears People in Texas Home Town Will Say 'Is That Best You Could Do?'

ST. MARYS, Pa., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Vice President John Nance Garner laid aside his senatorial toga for hunting togs today—and "bagged" a deer.

Hunting for the first time in northern woods, on the heavily timbered, well-stocked 10,000-acre preserve of Colonel William Kaul near this lumber town, the vice president shot the first buck brought down by a party of sportsmen, including nine senators and five other officials.

Guides later found a four-point, 145-pound buck slain by Senator Joseph Guffey, of Pennsylvania, earlier in the day.

Poses Beside Kill.

As Garner posed beside his kill—a 125-pound, four-point buck—he chuckled:

"The people back in Uvalde are going to say 'Is that the best you could do?'"

But Senator Minton, of Indiana, quickly cut off what promised to become a gushy tale of the vice president's hunting exploits in the Texas brushland by retorting:

"The deer didn't have a chance—it's got enough lead in it now to weigh 10 pounds heavier than when Garner started shooting."

The party departed from two special railroad cars in which they had arrived before dawn from Washington. Garner himself was the first to alight, clad in a new khaki outfit, red hunter's cap and cowhide boots.

Greeted in Village.

A small group of townspeople and hunters—every lodging house in the village is crowded with hunters—greeted him.

After a drive 12 miles up Elk river to the Kaul estate, the sportsmen tramped off into frost-covered hills, shortly after 9 a. m.

The vice president brought down his quarry two hours later, returning to the hunting lodge about noon, the buck slung over one shoulder.

RAIL CHIEFS CITE NEW INCOME NEED

Officials Say Carriers
Face Insolvency If Revenue
Is Not Increased.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Some of the nation's top-ranking railroad executives told the Interstate Commerce Commission today they faced serious curtailment of service, if not outright insolvency, unless rail revenues were increased substantially.

Arguing for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates and a 1-2-cent increase in passenger fares on eastern lines, Daniel Willard, veteran president of the Baltimore & Ohio, said his road would be unable to render adequate service and remain solvent if the present volume of business and the present ratio of income and expenditures remained unchanged.

Greater Need Cited.

Viewing the field more broadly, M. W. Clement, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, said that "probably an increase even greater than that asked for by the railroads themselves is necessary."

"The denial of the increase," he asserted, "would mean disaster to so many railroads that it seems difficult to exaggerate the consequences."

From S. T. Bledsoe, president of the Atchafalaya, Topeka & Santa Fe, came a similar gloomy picture of conditions on western roads.

Under and prospective conditions of traffic, revenues and operating costs in the western district are such as to give grave concern," he said.

Bledsoe declared that increases in the costs his road must meet, figured on the basis of traffic handled through the 12 months ended last September, amounted to $25,000,000.

The spread between income and expenses on the New York Central, said President F. E. Williamson, must have "immediate correction," if that line is to maintain its established standard of service.

Wallace Holds Restrictive
Provisions of Crop Legislation
Are an Ultimate
Danger to Lint Grower.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Signs of a break in the house deadlock over the wage-hour bill—and a partial clearing of the confusion of the special session—appeared for the first time tonight.

In response to a determined effort by northern members who busily buttonholed their colleagues in cloakrooms throughout the day, more than a dozen names were added to the petition intended to bring the measure before the house.

At the close of the day, only eight more were needed to bring the total to 218, a majority of the house membership, and assure a vote on the bill sometime before Christmas. It has already passed the senate.

Both Bills Periled.

While the movement for signatures advanced, the ever-conflicting economic interests of the industrial north and the agricultural south became involved in the controversy to an extent that at times seemed to endanger both the wage-hour bill and the pending crop control measure.

Meanwhile, Secretary Wallace suggested several changes in the senate farm bill. The effect of cotton crop restrictions, he said, would be to reduce export market and consequently the income of growers.

Increasingly irritated at the southern opposition, which with some assistance from other sections has thus far successfully bottled the cotton restrictions in the rules committee, the northerners threatened to sabotage the cotton provisions of the farm measure.

Beligerently opposed to the wage-hour measure, on the ground that it would remove existing taxes on crop restrictions, to the north-south divide in the competitive disadvantage of the south, the southern members were still fervently hopeful that a sufficient number of signatures could not be obtained.

Signers of Petition.

Those who signed the petition today included Representatives Green, Hendricks and Peterson, Florida Democrats; Luther Johnson, Democrat, Texas; Towey, Democrat, New Jersey; McGroarty, Democrat, California; Kenney, Democrat, New Jersey; Massingale, Democrat, Oklahoma; and Gifford, Republican, Massachusetts.

The rush to get on the petition developed late in the day and impelled southern opponents of the legislation to talk of a "flanking movement" designed to effect

COMMITTEE ACTS TO WIDEN STREET

Improvement on Fair Is Expected To Start Early Next Year.

Atlanta's City Planning Commission last night approved the closing of Whitehall place, extending a short block from Whitehall street into Fair street, giving impetus to the projected widening of Fair street from Whitehall to Capitol avenue.

The project already has the approval of the finance and the public works committees of city council and will go to council for sanction of that body at Monday's meeting.

To Aid Traffic.
When the Fair street widening is completed under the tentative plans, it will be a 60-foot thoroughfare and is expected to give considerable relief to traffic congestion in that section.

Closely allied with the Fair street project was the contemplated widening of Formwalt street 10 feet on the west side. No concerted movement has yet been initiated for this project. Owners of properties now facing Whitehall place not only agreed to donate the necessary footage on Fair street, but also agreed that if and when Formwalt is ever widened, they will make the 10 feet available to the city immediately.

Petition Defeated.
Walter S. McNeal, chairman of the zoning subcommittee of the City Planning Commission, presided over the meeting at which a petition for the rezoning of property at the southeast corner of Highland and Kentucky avenues from dwelling house to business was defeated.

Mrs. Daisy Belle McCollum was the petitioner for that change, but a large number of residents from the affected section appeared in opposition.

Rights-of-way for the Fair street widening already are being obtained, and it is expected this project will be one of the first to be started during the new year.

Atlanta Pup To Be 'Seeing Eye' for Blind in Alabama

The son and brother of champions, a four-month-old German shepherd puppy consented to a photograph yesterday just before he was put on a train for Montgomery, Ala., where Governor Bibb Graves will take a hand in training him to lead the blind. The pup, a gift of Judge Edgar Watkins Sr. to the Alabama Governor, posed in turtle-necked sweater nonchalantly while Mrs. A. G. Laughridge, breeder, stood by.

Bewildered Pup Sent to Graves Who'll Train Him To Lead Blind

Brother of Champions, Gift of Judge Edgar Watkins Sr., Howls Forlornly as He Is Crated for Trip to Alabama for Governor.

A bewildered German shepherd puppy destined to become a "seeing eye" for some blind person in Alabama was taking a train ride from Atlanta to Montgomery, Ala., yesterday where Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama, will take a hand in training the pup to lead the blind.

But the four-month-old son and brother of champions howled forlornly yesterday as he was crated up for the ride to Montgomery.

Delegation in Waiting.
The gift of Judge Edgar Watkins Sr., of Atlanta, to Governor Graves, the puppy will be met in Montgomery by a special delegation of the Governor's aides.

"Several years ago, Governor Graves conceived the idea of taking one of these pedigreed dogs, training him to lead the blind, and then giving him to a graduate of Alabama's school for the blind upon graduation," Judge Watkins said, adding that the Atlanta puppy is just a contribution to the work of his old friend, Governor Graves.

Has Every Care.
Clothed in a brown knit sweater—the latest mode in dogdom—the pup, his registered pedigree, health certificates and diet were sent on a train to Montgomery.

Mrs. A. G. Laughridge, breeder of the pup, said it would be "very unusual" if the puppy is trained to lead the blind because, so far, only female puppies are trained as "seeing eyes."

Mr. Von Sonnebach, the pup's last name, however, seemed little concerned about his future. He just stumbled around on his long legs and tried to keep from falling over his over-sized feet.

Amnesia Victim, 'Out' 30 Months, Wakes Up in Jail

REDWOOD CITY, Cal., Dec. 1. (UP)—A man recovered from the oblivion of amnesia in a jail cell today, and remembered for the first time in 30 months his name, his wife and his home.

It was as if he never had ceased to know those things. His name is Jimmy Saunders. His wife is Kathryn Saunders. Together they had operated a cafe in Cincinnati, called "Jimmy's and Katy's Restaurant."

When he awoke from his long "sleep" his first words were: "Where am I, and why am I in jail?"

No Longer May.
Jail attendants calmed him. It was no longer May, 1935—the year he last remembered. He later recalled clearly everything up to and including May-18, 1935. The last thing was this: He had sold his restaurant and was looking for a job. With two friends—he knew the names, Harry Henderson and Frank Graham—he was riding in an automobile between Akron and Cleveland.

"That's the last picture I can see. From then on all is blank." Tonight he heard that his wife was working as a waitress in Cincinnati, that she had kept fresh the hope that he would turn up and would be "overjoyed" to see him.

He asked about her and said: "I want to go back to her and go on just as if I hadn't lost two years of my life."

Taken to Jail.
Monday, a Redwood City policeman found him wandering about the streets. He was taken to jail on suspicion of vagrancy.

Dr. Roy G. Labachotte was called yesterday. He found Saunders had a neck injury and treated him. Saunders went to sleep.

"When he awakes, he'll know his name," said Dr. Labachotte. This morning Saunders awoke. He was behind bars. This angered him, and his shout and frantic beating on the bars of the cell called attendants who heard the story. Police prepared to release him so he could return to the Ohio city, and his wife and friends.

CAMPERS DRIFTING FROM NORTH POLE

Russian Group of Four Is Nearing Greenland.

LONDON, Thursday, Dec. 2. (UP)—The Soviet "polar" camp of four men, who have been living on an ice floe since May 21, is drifting rapidly toward Greenland, more than 600 miles from the North Pole, and is in danger of breaking up, the party said in a radio message picked up by the Daily Express today.

"We are now more than 600 miles from the pole and have had to battle with many difficulties," Ivan Papanin, leader of the expedition, radioed to Petrozavodsk. "We are approaching the shores of Greenland and must be ready at any moment to face another grim problem—how to carry on amid crushing ice."

4 HURT IN CRASHING DEKALB SCHOOL BUS

Boulder Crest Wreck Sends Stockbridge Quartet to Hospital.

Four persons were injured, one seriously, late yesterday afternoon when the car in which they were riding crashed into a DeKalb county school bus driven by W. R. Roach, on Boulder Crest drive between Flat Shoals road and Marvin's church, police reported.

All of the occupants of the car were from Stockbridge. Sam Johnson, 67, who received deep lacerations in the scalp was in serious condition last night at Grady hospital.

C. G. Burdette, 49, driver of the car, was severely cut about the head, and his wife, 43, received lacerations of the scalp, a torn right ear, and internal injuries. George Johnson, 16, was cut and bruised about the forehead. He and Burdette were treated at Grady and dismissed.

The bus contained 30 school children, none of whom was injured. The automobile was practically demolished, but the bus only slightly damaged. H. G. Tugle and R. H. Smith, DeKalb county policemen, said.

Police said the automobile apparently ran into the path of the bus. They quoted Burdette as saying something went wrong with his steering gear. No case was made against either driver.

The school children were returning home from the West Side and Panthersville grammar schools.

NRA RULED OUT

Oil Defense Refused Right To Include Code.

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 1. (AP)—Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone upheld prosecution objections in the federal government's gasoline price-fixing case today to defense testimony concerning objectives of the NRA, or conditions in the oil industry at the time the NRA petroleum code was initiated.

When Chief Defense Counsel Donovan offered the court proof of what the testimony would have indicated on these points, Judge Stone said the defense would be permitted to show conditions only as far back as the middle of 1934.

The government alleges the conspiracy to raise and peg prices with which 16 oil companies and 41 individuals are charged began in March, 1935.

Governor Forgets 42d Birthday Here

Governor Rivers passed another milestone on the highway of life yesterday, but so lightly did it weigh on his shoulders he forgot all about it.

As the chief executive left the mansion yesterday morning, Mrs. Rivers asked if he knew what day it was. "December 1," said the Governor. At his office, attendants reminded him that it was his birthday. Mrs. Rivers presided at a quiet family dinner in his honor last night. The Governor was 42 years old.

"SOCK" THAT COLD before It Sacks You!

Don't take a cold lightly. Don't be namby-pamby in your treatment.

A cold is an extremely serious thing and may end in something grave.

Treat a cold promptly. Treat it for what it is—an internal infection.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) are what you want for a cold!

First of all, they are a distinct cold medicine, made for colds and nothing else. "Cure-alls" may be treacherous.

Secondly, Bromo Quinine tablets are internal medication. They do an inside job, which is what you want.

Fourfold in Effect!
Bromo Quinine tablets do four important things in the treatment of a cold.

First, they open the bowels.

Second, they check the infection in the system.

Third, they relieve the headache and fever.

Fourth, they tone the system and help fortify against further attack.

Don't Dilly-Dally!
Don't procrastinate with a cold. As soon as you feel the first signs, go right to your druggist for a box of Bromo Quinine tablets.

Taken promptly, these tablets will break up a cold in 24 hours, and that's the action you want.

Bromo Quinine tablets are nothing new or untried. They have been on the market for over 40 years and are the world's largest-selling cold tablets. That's proof of their dependability.

"Safety First!"
Bromo Quinine tablets now come sugar-coated as well as plain. Both kinds are sold by all druggists, a few cents a box.

When a cold threatens, go right for Bromo Quinine tablets. Ask for—and insist upon getting—Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets). Substitutes are never the real thing!

Fulton county's Board of Public Welfare yesterday urged Mayor Hartsfield and city council to match the $30,000 paid into it monthly by Fulton county, and to increase total appropriations from $255,000 made this year to $337,236 for 1938.

2 Foreign Students Top G. M. C. Tests

MILLEDGEVILLE, Dec. 1.—Pride and prejudice today struggled within the breasts of senior class students at the Georgia Military College here. State requirements provide that all high school seniors take placement tests in a variety of subjects.

Students were startled when results showed that Henry Riba, of Costa Rica, had the best average of any G. M. C. student, and that the runner-up was Gonzalo Segura, Cuban student.

Activities including half the rent for a sewing room and one-half the rent of a surplus commodity warehouse and expense of shoe shop, and another $18,000 as the cost of half the sewing room materials.

4. Moneys directed by council for semi-private institutions, totaling $33,180.

Annual Income.
Neely pointed out that activities of the board provide citizens of Atlanta and Fulton county with an annual income of $2,726,271, which he listed as follows:

Social security, $500,000; clothing distributed by the sewing room, $339,029; surplus commodities, $116,789; shoes repaired, $89,496; CCC boys, $206,608; NYA projects, annual pay roll, $57,223; WPA annual pay roll for various projects, $1,146,460; part of sewing room pay roll not included in WPA projects, $348,696. Total, $2,726,271.

Neely asked an early hearing by the finance committee, and the mayor directed that the requests be turned over to the budget committee for study at its meeting next Monday.

STATE LINKS BELT IN DOCTOR'S DEATH

Youth's Confession of Killing Couple Barred.

SOUTH PARIS, Me., Dec. 1.—(P)—The prosecution, driving for conviction of 18-year-old Paul Dwyer on a charge he murdered Dr. James G. Littlefield, today introduced testimony that the elderly South Paris physician and his wife were strangled with belts.

Dr. Raphael Gilardy, of Hackensack, N. J., Bergen county physician, testified he examined the bodies after they were found stuffed in the Littlefield automobile in North Arlington, N. J., October 16.

Dwyer there ended a six-state "death tour" with the bodies, the prosecution charged.

Gilardy, one of six state witnesses to testify at the second day of the superior court trial, declared he found a tan belt pulled so tightly about the physician's neck it caused a "terrible constriction."

A court ruling barred from evidence an alleged confession obtained from Dwyer by North Arlington police.

MARINELLI ORDERED TO ANSWER DEWEY

Prosecutor Files Charges Against Tammany Leader With Governor Lehman.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 1.—(P)—Governor Lehman tonight ordered New York County Clerk Albert Marinelli to answer by noon on December 6 "sworn charges" by Thomas E. Dewey, Manhattan prosecutor-elect, that he is unfit for office.

The Governor made public a letter to Marinelli, asking for the answer, six hours after Dewey filed with him a five-page letter repeating under oath his charges against Marinelli.

Lehman inclosed in the letter a copy of Dewey's charges.

At the same time, Lehman announced he has sent a letter to the prosecutor-elect acknowledging receipt of the "sworn charges."

In his statement, Dewey charged that Marinelli, a Tammany leader, is a political ally of racketeers and criminals.

GOVERNOR GETS DEWEY'S LETTER
NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(P)—Special Rackets Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey repeated under oath today his charges that Albert Marinelli, Tammany district leader, is a political ally of racketeers and criminals, and left the question of Marinelli's removal as New York county clerk squarely to Governor Herbert H. Lehman.

In a letter, sworn to by Dewey last night and presented to the Governor today, the district attorney-elect charged that:

Marinelli harbored Charles Falci, fugitive from federal authorities, and that Marinelli frequently met alone in the private office of his clubhouse Charles "Lucky" Luciano, vice racketeer, and nine other "notorious underworld characters."

The six condemned included all the foremen, Ce Soir said.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calumet—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning

The liver should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks pink.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A more bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Barmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. TOBACCO PROVISIONS ARE TERMED 'UNFAIR'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(P)—Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, inserted in the congressional record today a telegram complaining the farm bill's tobacco section would be "unfair to Georgia producers."

The message, sent from Valdosta, was signed by G. W. Varn, whom George described as "one of the best informed men in the Georgia tobacco belt."

Varn said Georgia producers would be penalized by basing acreage allotments on the last three years' planting, because many have reduced their acreage while those in other states planted more than in previous years.

Blind Man, 70, Dies As Pie Plea Fails

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 1.—(P)—Seventy-year-old Harry Goddard, blind pensioner ill a long time, asked his landlady, Mrs. Nellie Anderson, yesterday for a piece of pie.

Mrs. Anderson told him his weakened condition made pie eating unwise.

Goddard sighed, then died.

United States not only balanced its budget last year but had a surplus of $3,970,214, representing nearly 10 per cent of annual expenditures, he said in his report for the War Department's bureau of insular affairs.

Describing general conditions as "excellent," Secretary Woodring noted that Philippine trade volume and the favorable balance increased, gold production mounted, and the small public debt was further reduced.

Woodring omitted mention of a coconut oil tax refund of approximately $47,000,000 made by the United States in July—enough to run the commonwealth for a full year.

The Philippines will collect from the United States treasury for several years to come annual refunds of about $18,000,000 of coconut oil taxes and $10,000,000 in sugar excise taxes.

SHREVEPORT, La., Dec. 1.—(P)—A Barksdale field fighting plane plummeted to the ground during combat training near Avery, Texas, 50 miles west of Texarkana, Ark., killing its pilot and gunner.

The pilot, Second Lieutenant Charles William Field, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Field, of Rocky Face, Ga., was killed outright, and the gunner, Private George W. Bolton Jr., 19, of Bienville parish, La., died after reaching a hospital in Texarkana.

Lieutenant Field was graduated from the Air Corps Flying school at Randolph field, San Antonio, October 6, 1937, and began tactical training with the third wing of the GHQ air force here October 30, being attached to the 13th attack squadron. He was single.

BAPTISTS PLANNING MISSION PENSIONS

Annual Convention Here Closes With 322 Appointments Okayed.

Plans to establish a pension board to work out a system of pensions for mission workers and missionaries were launched yesterday afternoon by the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention in the concluding session of the annual one-day meeting.

Social security legislation does not apply to employees of religious groups, board officials pointed out. Upon a vote of representatives from 18 states and the District of Columbia, the pension plan was referred to the executive committee of the Home Mission Board for further study.

The treasurer's report revealed total receipts for ten months of 1937 were $428,003—an 11 per cent increase of the same period of 1936.

Budget of $468,000.

The board approved a budget of $468,000 for next year, with $233,000 to be used for interest and debt retirement, Dr. J. B. Lawrence, executive secretary-treasurer, said.

Officers of the board re-elected to serve again next year included: Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, prominent Atlanta minister, president; G. Frank Garrison, of Atlanta, recording secretary; and the Rev. S. F. Lowe, pastor of Inman Park Baptist church, vice president. Dr. Lawrence was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

B. M. Callaway, of Atlanta, chairman of the building loan committee, reported the mission's $1,320,000 loan fund is at present "healthier than it has been for the last 30 years."

Okay 322 Appointments.

Appointment of 322 mission workers—241 in the southern states, 73 in Cuba, 8 in Panama—were approved for 1938.

A committee from the Home Mission Board was appointed during the afternoon session to confer with the Southern Baptist Convention on plans for launching a radio program on a national hook-up. Mr. Lowe and R. G. Lee, of Memphis, Tenn., were appointed on the committee. A third member will be appointed later.

$25,000 SUIT FILED IN SEWER DEATH

Young Victim's Father Lays Negligence to City.

A $25,000 suit against the city of Atlanta was filed yesterday in Fulton superior court for the storm-sewer drowning August 2 of eight-year-old Hester Rogers.

R. E. Rogers, father of the victim, alleged the city was negligent in operating the sewer in that it was so constructed as to allow a pond of backwater to form in the street.

The child was swept into an open manhole on Rawson street near Central avenue. His body was recovered at the sewer's outlet several miles away.

Restore Windsor To Land of Birth, Paper Demands

GLASGOW, Scotland, Dec. 1.—(P)—The Socialist newspaper Forward demanded tonight that the British government bring the Duke and Duchess of Windsor back to England before "Prince Charming has to become a wandering Jew."

"Let them come and let the royal ladies all kiss and be friends," the newspaper urged in a front-page editorial.

"It is clear the public still is more interested in the King who got the sack than in the King who is carrying on the job."

The newspaper accused the British ruling class of treating the former monarch "scurvily" after having "exploited him mercilessly for 40 years."

Of the Windsors' deferred plans to inspect housing in the United States, it declared there are housing problems enough in Glasgow alone to occupy the Duke "until he is an old man."

DUKE REFUSES TO APPROVE BIOGRAPHY

LONDON, Dec. 1.—(P)—Publishers for Compton Mackenzie, who planned a biography of the Duke of Windsor, issued a formal statement today saying the Duke first authorized an "authentic account" of his life and abdication and then changed his mind.

The statement followed one by the Duke's attorney that the Duke had no intention of approving any biography and would not furnish data for it.

The publishers, Rich & Cowan, Ltd., had announced last week that the biography was being planned.

BRITISH "WHO'S WHO"

LONDON, Dec. 1.—(P)—The Duchess of Windsor, American-born wife of Great Britain's former King, entered the British "Who's Who" today with publication of the 1938 edition.

The Duchess, who was the former Wallis Warfield, of Baltimore, Md., was listed with the royal family as were the wives of the other brothers of King George.

She was the only one of the royal wives, however, whose date of birth and parents were not included. Her divorced husband, Ernest Aldrich Simpson, was not among the 52 Simpsons listed.

BETTER PROGRAMS DEMANDED ON AIR

FCC Head Says Standards Must Be Improved by Law, If Necessary.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—(P)—A blunt notice that the standards of radio programs must be improved—by law, if necessary—was served upon the nation's broadcasters today by Federal Communications Commissioner George Henry Payne.

Contending the ether waves were the inalienable property of the public, he told the National Conference on Educational Broadcasting.

"The ideals of the broadcasters must be changed, even if such changes are made at the risk of a severe jolt to these gentlemen. Like the moving pictures, the average program of these broadcasters is addressed to an intelligence possessed by a child of 12. It is important to raise this average to the adult age; otherwise there is the danger that radio will perpetuate mental immaturity in the grown-up."

The program standard, he asserted, must be elevated to a plane corresponding with the industry's technical standard.

ATLANTA, GA., DECEMBER 2, 1937.

LO, THE POOR COTTON FARMER

Senator Walter F. George raises potent criticism of the farm bill formula drafted by the subcommittee which held hearings through the south a few weeks ago, his criticism, logically, being directed at that portion of the bill affecting the cotton farmers of the south.

Under provisions of the tentative law the cotton farmer would, once again, be made "the goat" of the entire agricultural program for the nation. If put into effect and enforced, the regulations would not only hold the individual farmer to his present economic state, without hope of improvement, but would drastically reduce the purchasing ability of the south by taking away the jobs of a large proportion of the farm workers. Thus the proposal would not aid, but actually injure the south, and would react against the entire country, by still further restricting the southern market for all types of products.

The measure offered would limit the south's cotton production to 10,000,000 bales per year. This would mean taking much acreage out of cotton.

But, under the proposed law, the southern farmer would not be permitted to raise any other money crop on his former cotton acres. He would be forbidden to raise corn, cattle or hogs on the land. Or any crop which would compete with the products of another section which had been restricted in production.

Thus the cotton farmer would be in a position where he not only could not raise cotton on a large proportion of his land, but could not raise any of the logical money crops in its place. The only possible use he could make of it would be to raise those minor crops which, while possibly useful for home consumption, have little or no worth-while money value on the market.

Under such rules a large proportion of this acreage would remain idle, with the result that there would be no jobs for many farm workers. These men would, by necessity, be forced to the towns and cities to seek work and subsistence; there many of them would become objects of public relief and the unemployment problem would again be aggravated—and the south, already struggling under the severest of economic handicaps, would be plunged still further into subnormal living standards.

As Senator George points out, the effect of the bill on the farmer himself would be to "freeze" his income at approximately its present level. His cotton production restricted, barred from taking a profit through any other of the principal crops, he would merely be permitted to receive his present cotton income with no chance of increasing it.

It would be much better to leave the cotton farmer alone and let him raise what cotton he can and take his chances on the rapidly disappearing foreign market. "It would be better," Senator George rightly holds, "if they retained what little foreign market they have left."

At least there would then be hope that by improved methods and the adoption of efficient farm practices, the southern cotton grower would eventually be able to produce his staple at a cost which would permit sale in an unprotected world market, in competition with cheap-labor cotton, and yet leave a profit on every pound.

SIGNS ON THE HIGHWAYS

Representative Larsen, of Laurens county, has introduced a bill in the Georgia assembly to give the State Highway Board jurisdiction over advertising signs on the rights-of-way of the roads of Georgia.

Regulation of highway advertising is badly needed in this state. The natural beauties of the Georgia terrain are, along nearly all the highways, either hidden or marred by the signs which proclaim the alleged advantages of some product or bear the physiognomy of some local son seeking election to office, great or small.

Especially outrageous is the evil when the tourist draws near some town. Then every post and every tree bears unsightly blossoms of wooden or pasteboard eulogies of product or retail establishment, of hotel or tourist home or camp, of patent medicine or fertilizer.

To bar these signs from the rights-of-way is the first step in a program that should be continued until they are entirely driven back from the vision of users of the highways, natives and visitors alike. In other states laws have been passed, and held constitutional, giving the state control over advertising signs anywhere within vision range of the roads, even though they stand on privately-owned property. It has been held that the public welfare has an important interest in the vista which shall greet all who use the public highways.

The State Highway Board would be an efficient authority to control this evil. Employees of the board are constantly at work on or patrolling the roads. They have better opportunity than any other group to see that proper regulations, after they are enacted, are enforced. With the aid of the state highway police, the board and its organization can quickly remove the most obnoxious violators of the rules of scenic beauty, if once the legislature grants them the legal authority.

The bill introduced by the gentleman from Laurens should receive the most sympathetic consideration from his fellow members of the assembly.

NO TIME FOR JINGOISM

Within the scope of 24 hours, news dispatches from Shanghai presented a dramatic lesson in the folly of hot-headedness and in the need for a cool, considered attitude on the part of the American public toward the Sino-Japanese conflict.

Reports were given wide publicity that the Japanese had seized an American-owned vessel and had deliberately tossed the American flag into the muddy waters of the Whangpoo river. If the story had been true it would have been ideal material for the jingoist, the blatant spouter about national pride who always struts in the public eye with a prominent chip upon his shoulder.

Fortunately, in less than 24 hours, it was revealed that the story was largely untrue. The American flag had been hauled down by the Chinese crew of the vessel when the Japanese took it over, believing it to be of Chinese registry. Promptly, when the American ownership was discovered, the vessel was released by the Japanese.

In regard to the flag incident, the owner of the ship, who first reported the "insult," now believes that it fell into the river accidentally when the Japanese were attempting to transfer it to one of their own ships.

The lesson to be learned from this incident is not confined to the folly of becoming emotionally aroused. Even had the first story been true, it would give no real cause for drawing this nation nearer to participation in the maelstrom of war.

The United States has no reason, economic or moral, for any interference in the Far Eastern situation. True, some of the European powers, fully occupied with efforts to maintain the peace on their own continent, would be delighted if Uncle Sam would pull their chestnuts out of the Oriental conflagration.

But Uncle Sam has too often been the goat in the international game. Less scrupulous powers have too often taken advantage of the emotional, ultra moral and easily swayed side of the old gentleman's character.

Every American, if the nation's youth is not to become cannon fodder on Asiatic battle fronts, must at all times hold fast to the truth that the United States has no interest in the east which should weigh a feather in the scales when the danger of war involvement arises.

Britain and France have many times the commitments in China that this country has. If they want to assume the role of heroic Gahad and plunge blindly to the rescue of the Chinese victim of Tokyo, let them.

American warships, American planes, American youth are not to be sacrificed either in a nebulous moral crusade or in a conflict which, emphatically, is no concern of this country.

Editorial of the Day

THE HIGH COST OF DEATH.

(From the Asheville Citizen.)

A new-born baby, an economist has figured, enters the world with a tax burden upon him that will ultimately cost his first year's earnings when he reaches the productive age. But if it's costly to be born, it takes a fortune to die. This is illustrated by a press survey of armament costs showing that war, in company with other ventures, had skyrocketed in expense since 1918.

The cost sheet, roughly, is as follows:

For one day's fighting of an army of six divisions—$2,000,000.

One modest air raid—$80,000.

One torpedo broadside from a modern battleship—$12,500.

The above figures, of course, apply to "stabilized effort," or what the laymen might call a hard day's fighting. However, an army might stretch out its bill over a week and get off lightly for, say $15,000,000, though this figure does not include cost of feeding an army or paying it. Incidentally, soldiers' wages haven't risen much since 1918.

Every round fired from a 75 mm. gun costs slightly under $10. An active battery can do away with a couple of thousand dollars worth of shells in a single barrage. Shrapnel costs $14 a pound, which is pretty reasonable, considering the destruction.

And now our costs must be adjusted to equipment. A modern battleship costs $60,000,000, up 100 per cent since 1918. A medium-sized field gun costs about the same as a Rolls-Royce limousine, and a good rifle about $10 or $12. A nice tank can be purchased for about $30,000.

Unless you are fastidious, a pound of ammunition, 16 ounces of powder and steel will do you in, if it's well placed. Here's the comedown: it only costs about $0 cents.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

FEARS SHELLACKING WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank, is warning friends in Wall Street that the stock market may take another shellacking, this time from foreign selling. Foreign investors have hung on to their American securities thus far, but Mr. Aldrich fears that they may grow nervous and dump them.

Mr. Aldrich's fears are based on soundings of foreign opinion taken during a recent trip abroad. As one of the most powerful figures in the American financial community, he was able to ask straight questions of such bigwigs as the managers of the big British investment trusts.

According to those who have talked to him, he now reports that these men are showing the first signs of jitters in regard to their American holdings. Eitherto, British and other foreign businessmen have always considered American businessmen hysterically alarmists in their estimates of the future. But now, apparently, the British are beginning to change their minds, and are playing with the thought of pulling out of the American market. If they do, it will be pretty serious, since the holdings of the British trusts alone, as of today, amount to nearly $500,000,000.

It must be added that the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Treasury and the Department of Commerce here all flatly disagree with Mr. Aldrich. They maintain very forcibly that for the present, at least, the threat of foreign selling is a meaningless bogeyman.

At the SEC and the Treasury, where the doings of foreign investors are minutely watched, the experts report that, since September foreign buying has slightly exceeded foreign selling. And they see no reasons for a change in the trend. Representatives of the British investment trusts were here recently to find out how new American taxes would affect them. The Treasury worked hard to get their plans in regard to their American holdings, and came out pretty well convinced there would be no dumping.

PRESIDENT IS ANNOYED An interesting sign of the times is the denunciation of securities dealers to which the President has recently treated more than one business visitor. One of the great business minds who came to Washington to talk depression at the White House was surprised when the President launched into a full 20 minutes of angry eloquence against the system by which new securities are sold in this country.

It is the President's thesis that, if the securities dealers had an atom of sense, new securities could easily be floated, even in the present bad times. The incident gave an interesting measure of the degree to which the administration tends to regard the stock market not as a business barometer, but as a business depressant.

BELGIAN ADVENTURE A Belgian adventure in American utilities finance which has rather the flavor of an E. Phillips Oppenheim novel is being watched with some puzzlement by the SEC officials responsible for the administration of the holding company act.

The Belgian company concerned is the Societe Financiere de Transports et d'Entreprises Industrielles, "Sofina" for short. Sofina is the largest utilities holding company in Europe, with utilities properties in Belgium, France, Portugal, Germany, Turkey, the Argentine, Spain and Mexico. It also owns industrial companies, glass companies, coal mines and fertilizer manufacturing.

Its managing director, D. Heineken, is a suave, quiet Belgian whose extreme shrewdness has given him the reputation of being the cleverest bargain hunter among European financiers. Some of the things of his method of doing business may be gathered from the fact that his properties in Barcelona are incorporated in Canada, his Argentine properties in Mexico, and his Mexican properties in the United States. As a consequence of it, Charles K. Wilmer, a previously unknown Englishman, went on Middle West's board of directors as Sofina's representative.

It had been expected that the matter would end there, but Mr. Heineken suddenly appeared in this country late last summer, and began negotiations with New York and Chicago banks for more Middle West stock. Just before the stock market crash, arrangements for the transfer of working control of Middle West to Sofina had been completed. The crash, which knocked the bottom out of the Middle West stock price, upset the arrangements.

Now it is understood that Heineken and Sofina will return to the charge, this time with the intention of investing in a number of American utilities companies.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Secrets are often precious things. To protect them stop at night. For wouldn't life be horrible if we knew each other's thoughts?

Wanted, A Playlet.

Is there a reader of Silhouettes who has a spare playlet or script for a pageant, suitable for Christmas presentation in a church, lying around the house?

Miss Frae Hayes, of Farmington, Ga., has written asking if such material can be found as possible. She would like something requiring not more than four or five characters—fewer if possible.

If any of you have such a playlet handy, will you please mail it direct to Miss Hayes? That is, if you have no further use for it yourself, of course.

He Changed His Mind.

His years are two-and-a-half. Until recently he was the only child in the family. Then he was told that soon he was to have a baby brother or sister. His mother, strangely, disappeared and they told him she was at the hospital, getting ready to receive the new baby. And his daddy said that soon they would both go to the hospital and see the newcomer.

Then, for a day or two, Daddy was too worried and busy to play with young son as usual. And the little fellow began to feel neglected. And he used childish logic and connected the preoccupation of the household with the coming of the new baby, somehow.

So, one afternoon, his nurse found him with the telephone receiver off the hook. He was talking.

"Hospital?" he said. "Please don't send that baby we ordered. We don't want it, any more."

Electricity Around the Farm.

Now comes the newest idea in trically charged wire fence. Connected through a controller unit to the source of power, it carries a constant, mild charge, sufficient to give livestock a slight shock on contact, but not strong enough to do harm to any living thing.

The advantages claimed for this new electric fence are many. One advanced by its proponents is that it is economical, only one strand of wire being necessary, high enough yet not too high, so that livestock cannot pass without touching it.

With the single strand it is claimed that fence weeds are a thing of the past. It is easy, they say, to cut the weeds or grass under the single wire strand. Stock, grazing, it is said, don't often touch the wire twice. The first time is sufficient to teach them and thenceforth they keep away from the strange wire.

Maybe a good idea. I wouldn't know, for sure.

Is She A Skeptic?

He is a well-known young married man. Recently good business required that he attend an evening banquet and a speech-making. It was one of those affairs where he couldn't take his wife. And she rather resented her aloneness, at home, for the evening.

So, just to prove his activities for the time, the husband got a number of others at the banquet to autograph his program, under a statement reading something like this:

"I hereby certify that _____ was present, with me, at the banquet of _____ tonight."

It was signed by half a dozen fellows at the young husband's table. By a well-known newspaperman. By the Governor of Georgia. By the congressman from this district and by a prominent local judge.

The boy produced it, triumphantly, when he got home. And his wife looked at it, skeptically, and remarked:

"I still don't believe that's where you've been."

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Monday, December 2, 1912: "Savannah, Ga., December 1.—(Special).—Old Rome, in her worst days, never harbored such conditions of vice as are prevalent in our highest social circles today," declared Bishop A. W. Wilson, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in a sermon at Wesley Memorial church today.

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Friday, December 2, 1887: "The well-known and universally liked game keeper at the car shed, Captain Porter, was presented with a valuable gold-headed cane a few days ago. His friends around the depot made him the gift."

Gregorian Calendar.

Ten days vanished in one night, as the calendar we use today was adopted in 1582 first by papal edict in Roman Catholic countries. (It did not come into use in Britain and America until 1752.) It called for the Gregorian calendar after the pope who ordered its use; the calculator was one Aloysius Lilius, astronomer, of Naples.

World's Window

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

The Plot in France.

NEW YORK—There is something decidedly fishy about these stories of a huge plot to overthrow the republican form of government in France. Immense stores of arms are found, discovered and brought to light by police pretty well all over the country. The government issues daily communiques on the progress of the search and each time informs the public that additional war-stocks have been located, that the conspiracy is far-flung and constitutes a grave menace, but adds at the same time that there is nothing to fear and that the police is proving itself the devoted servant of the republican regime "which has the confidence of the country."

What is really going on is that the government is trying to win the confidence of the country. No doubt some arms have been found. No doubt some plot is actually discovered. Some foolish fellows have taken it into their head that they can profit by the serious economic and political difficulties in which the country finds itself by creating trouble, fish in troubled waters in the hope that some major disturbance will result. But the government is enlarging and magnifying the scope and significance of the petty plotters.

Few Arrests.

If there was so dangerous a conspiracy against the regime as is hinted in official dispatches, why does the government say that it need to take any special measures to wipe out the danger? Why if there is so immense a plot that its ramifications practically cover all the principal departments around Paris and the chief cities in the provinces, why are so few persons arrested? One general of aviation, a retired officer, a flight lieutenant of the 54th regiment have been pulled in so far. Were those war stocks all left unattended? Were there no guards there? The police found a system of labyrinthine corridors and passages under a chateau formerly inhabited by the well-known perfume manufacturer, Monsieur Francois Coty, alias Francisco Spornino, who has been dead these five years.

That looks mighty sensational. M. Coty was known to be a Bonapartist, being a Corsican by birth. The inference is: another secret arsenal brought to light. But even the government communique admits that no weapons of any sort were found. Another item: in the government stores on the Mount Valerien documents were found showing that subversive organizations were withdrawing equipment from official war stocks. But the commander of the old fort, which overlooks Paris, is not molested and not a single employee.

It has been an open secret that the aviation service and the army of Morocco have been honeycombed with Fascist cells these last few years. Several loyal republican officers have sounded warnings in the newspapers that in an emergency the government would not be able to rely on the officer personnel. And even that the same sort of thing was to be looked for as occurred in Spain, where regular army commanders started a rebellion against the Left republican government.

'Method in Madness.'

Does it not look as if the government is trying to force the issue and takes these means of pretending that there is really a gigantic plot to remove from the army service a number of officers who might in a moment of crisis refuse to support the republican regime? The rumors, fantastic stories and scares multiply. The whole thing has the atmosphere of an operabouffe, a staged theatrical performance. Tomorrow when the excitement dies down, Chateaufort and Marx Dormoy, the prime minister and minister of police, respectively, will come before the chamber and say: "See, how vigilant we are. The greatest plot in history was foiled by us. We were on the job. We protected the country. We prevented a messy effusion of blood and the destruction of property. We are worthy to continue in office. Give us your vote of confidence." And so they'll rush through parliament a number of measures which the country in a sober mood would debate a long time and most likely refuse.

Mahogany.

Twenty million young mahogany trees are available for plantation in Puerto Rico to replace the island's once dense hardwood forests which have been completely cut away, according to the Puerto Rican Trade Council.

The new trees were propagated by the Puerto Rico Reconstruction Administration, federal government agency, and several million already have been planted on the mountain sides.

Neptune's Racecourse.

Omeys Island, a short distance off the west coast of Ireland, is not an island at all at low tide. Then it is connected with the mainland by a bed of sand packed so hard and smooth that horse and cycle races are frequently held where the sea has rolled only a few hours before.

You Save Nothing by Feeding

The Cow Less If She Stops

Giving Milk

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

In one particular the American people have never changed. A certain number of them, regardless of the sum they earn, spend every dollar they get their hands on—and then buy more on credit if they can.

The other people, being more practical or having a greater sense of duty and responsibility, save a portion of their earnings for future emergencies.

Having saved a little money, the thrifty ones can do one of three things with it. They can put it in a bank, which was sometimes risky before deposits were insured; or they can bury it in a can, and thus take the risk of being robbed; or they can find a way to invest it.

This saved money is the most important physical item in civilization. Without it there would be no civilization. It has built all that we have.

But the natural tendency of savers is to bury their money in a can, and that would be fatal. It must be kept circulating for the general good. How, then, can they be persuaded to invest it? There is only one way. People can be persuaded only by offering them a reward.

Before he will become an investor, the saver demands a promise of reasonable security and a reasonable return. And since all investments have some element of risk, he demands a further return to pay for that.

The "profit motive" may be wicked, but people simply won't play ball without some hope of reward.

Government ownership is advocated as a substitute for profit making. How does it work? In effect, the government takes the savings of the thrifty, since they are the only people who have any, and buys or builds a business. It doesn't give them any return on their money, however. In theory it gives cheaper service, but experience shows that it really takes more money from the thrifty to pay for its losses.

The great business enterprises of America, which provide the service and commodities on which all of us depend, are not owned by single individuals. They were built by the money of investors. When they need to expand, they go to the investors for more money. Without investors to furnish the capital, development stops.

Since all of us try to buy necessary commodities and services as cheaply as we can, competition and government regulators contribute to give us ever more for less money, but there is a limit below which we cannot go and survive.

As the worker must have a fair reward for his service, so the investor (the worker who has saved) must have a fair reward for his money or he will not invest. And then the wheels stop.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"Come one, come all, this rock shall fly
From its firm base as soon as I!"

But if there are enough to come, many things, something that was even the rock will fly at last. Watching Tulane and Louisiana State play their annual gridiron "classic" in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans last Saturday it was possible to imagine an early day when the number of players each team will be permitted to play and even the number it will be permitted to have on its squad may be limited by football law. Tulane has one good team, apparently, and last Saturday that team outplayed the boys from Baton Rouge throughout the first quarter by a good margin. But L. S. U. has two, or even three, good teams, and no sooner had the Green Wave washed one down than another was up, and another, until at last the Wave was spent and the victory went to the side with the superior numbers.

We, for one, don't call that football. We don't call it sport of any sort, even though it does make a great spectacle. But unless and until there is a rule institution like L. S. U. and our own Alabama and others with more than 5,000 students to draw upon are going to oppose with two or more good teams the one good team which smaller institutions like Tulane and Vanderbilt are able to put into the field.

Not that the game at New Orleans Saturday wasn't the most colorful this column has ever looked upon as a non-partisan. The Sugar Bowl has a design and an air peculiarly its own, and the crowd was unlike any other this country assembles. Even those who have no Latin blood in New Orleans are responsive to the Latin tradition and temper. They take their sports in impassioned earnest. The players do the same, when playing each other at any rate—and the intensity, chance-taking and elan are enough to let anything happen any minute. There is no doubt in this column's mind that New Orleans has something to make its annual Sugar Bowl game outlive soon all the roses of Pasadena.

Dexter Fellows, the circus man, is dead—and the circus won't be quite the same now. Not for newspapermen, at any rate. Dexter called himself a publicity man, and that is what he was, but he was so much more than the title was rarely used by others in reference to him.

STATE SENATE HITS ALL COURT BILL FOES

Georgia Body Broadens Attack To Include Other U. S. Lawmakers.

A resolution adopted Tuesday by the state senate criticizing Georgia's congressional delegation was broadened yesterday by the upper house to include all national senators and representatives who opposed President Roosevelt's supreme court reform plan.

Senator Paul Lindsay, of DeKalb, brought the resolution up for reconsideration yesterday as the session opened, and the state senators voted to strike "Georgia" from the paper so that all United States senators and representatives who opposed the court reform were scored.

Resolution Adopted.
The resolution adopted Tuesday by a vote of 21 to 17, was readopted yesterday, 40 to 6, after its proponents declared the paper was in the nature of an appeal to congressmen to bring relief to the Georgia farmer.

Senator Millican, of Fulton, asserted the resolution had little meaning and that "we should get to work ourselves to do something for the farmer."

A number of members of the upper house uttered speeches of praise for United States Senator George when the resolution was being reconsidered. They praised him for independent thought and action, and supported the effort to amend the resolution because they declared the paper was an attack on Senator George.

Not a Reflection.
"This paper is not a reflection upon the Georgia delegation but is merely an appeal for speedy farm relief," State Senator Howard Ennis declared.

Senator J. J. Flynt, of Griffin, pointed out that "Georgia farmers are in as bad a condition as they were in 1933," as he urged that the national congress take steps to remedy this situation.

The original resolution condemned Georgia's delegation to congress for opposing the court reform plan while offering no solution of their own for farm relief. President Roosevelt was praised as "the south's best friend."

City's Big Brothers in Spirit Urged To Become Big Brothers in Fact

More Enlistments in Christmas Cheer Army Reported by Chairman Belle Isle on Eve of 2d Day of Wax Figure Exhibit.

"Big Brothers in spirit should become Big Brothers in fact," A. Belle Isle, general Big Brother chairman, urged yesterday, asking that more of Atlanta's Big Brothers join the army to help alleviate suffering this Christmas in the fifth annual Christmas fund campaign.

More enlistments in the Big Brother army were reported yesterday by Chairman Belle Isle, but there were a lot of Big Brothers at the wax exhibit who haven't joined the army for the sale of the special Big Brother edition of The Constitution, scheduled December 19.

"We need more 'Big Brothers' to fill out the coupon and send it to Big Brother headquarters," Belle Isle said. "Only two hours of each Big Brother's time will be used, and every penny he collects will mean that much more happiness for some unfortunate."

With Christmas less than a month away, it's every Big Brother's duty to co-operate in raising funds for the poor people in Atlanta that really need to enjoy themselves. There are hundreds that shiver when we have these cold spells, and many of them never have enough food, Big Brother officials declared last night.

Atlanta's outstanding talent is appearing nightly over radio station WATL at 8 o'clock, asking in their own particular way for Atlanta Big Brothers to join the Big Brother army "and see that these needy people are cared for."

Following the paper sales on December 19, Big Brothers will celebrate with the fifth annual charity ball Wednesday night, December 22, in the Egyptian room of the Fox theater. Tickets to the ball are being distributed to Big Brother contributors by Postal Telegraph messengers, Belle Isle said.

949.98 salary and $198.98 travel expense from that agency.

Others Listed.
Others listed as receiving travel expense only were: Senator H. G. Atwood, Representative John W. Bennett Jr., of Ware; Representative C. J. Cogdell, of Glynn; Representative J. T. Houze, of Lowndes; Representative H. L. Lanham, of Floyd; Representative A. A. Marshall, of Macon; Representative W. D. Sanders, of Coweta; Senator John B. Spivey, of Swainsboro; Representative Roy V. Harris, of Richmond. Houze also was listed as recipient of a $400 salary item and $473.44 travel expense item from the wild life division.

Judge Sutton took the floor to deny that he ever had "accepted an appointment from the state." He said the legislature had differentiated between holding public office and accepting special employment. He pointed out that in 1931 the general assembly enacted a law forbidding legislators to hold any public office or accept employment from the state during their legislative service.

"In 1935 this act was repealed," he said, "showing that the legislature recognized the difference between a public office and special employment."

Amendment Offered.
Representative Brown, of Peach county, and Representative Joel, of Clarke county, then offered an amendment to the Coleman resolution to "condemn the employment of members of the assembly during their terms as representatives of the people."

Supporters of Sutton, Lanier and the others named called the amendment "a move to unseat" them.

Zellner, of Monroe, said: "Sticklers for the constitution sometimes start something like this because like a lot of us they're not lucky enough to get these jobs, with ice water, nice desks and so forth. These are fine men, and I think they earned what they made."

ROOSEVELT FISHES OFF DRY TORTUGAS

Laconic Message Reports 'Good Luck.'

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 1.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and his vacation party spent a second day in the Dry Tortugas area today fishing off Garden Key.

A radio message from the yacht Potomac said he was enjoying excellent luck, but gave no details of the catch or whether he had overtaken Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, who was the leading fisherman of the party at the last report.

Still combining business with his health-seeking cruise, Mr. Roosevelt worked on official mail flown to the Potomac from Miami by a navy seaplane.

The plane brought Colonel Watson, military aide, his baggage which went astray at the dock here when the party arrived Monday.

Court Reform Leader Has No Hope of Post

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, who led President Roosevelt's unsuccessful fight to re-vamp the supreme court, told reporters today he has scant hope of ever being appointed to the supreme court.

"No President would ever so far forget himself that he would appoint me to the court," said Ashurst.

"And if one did, I would never live to take my place on the bench."

(He paused for effect, "because I would die of surprise.")

Meeting Is Postponed Because of Etiquette

Members of the Atlanta Board of Firemasters are sticklers for etiquette.

Their penchant for the teachings of Emily Post last night caused them to postpone the scheduled meeting of the board until tonight and permitted them to remain for the last courses of a venison and fish dinner served to the mayor and members of the council by City Attorney Jack C. Savage.

Mayor Pro Tem. I. Gloer Halsey, vice chairman of the board, asserted: "We just didn't want to abridge good manners and eat and run so we postponed the meeting."

GENERAL LUDENDORFF REPORTED NEAR DEATH

MUNICH, Dec. 1.—(AP)—General Erich Ludendorff, critically ill after an operation for a bladder infection, today took a turn for the worse. He is 72.

Doctors attending him, however, said the German World War command might linger for hours or even days. His wife has moved to the hospital to be near him.

Girl Tells Traffic Cop To Go To—It's O. K.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(UP)—It is O. K. to tell a traffic cop where he can go, Magistrate Rudich ruled today in dismissing a disorderly conduct charge against Miss Margaret Greenberg.

The traffic cop, Fred Schweyer, complained that when he admonished Miss Greenberg for blowing her automobile horn unnecessarily, she told him, in an annoyed tone, "You can go to hell."

"That is a simple declaration of fact," the magistrate decided. "In the ordinary course of life and entirely within the realm of our belief, it is quite possible that you can go to hell. Miss Greenberg's remark wasn't a command or a wish but a Simon-pure statement of fact."

R. McCurley last night announced the arrest of 25 negroes ranging in age from 9 to 25 years of age.

Seventeen negroes were charged with larceny. The others were charged with receiving stolen goods. The detectives said the negroes, most of whom were arrested yesterday and early last night, confessed.

Several allegedly stolen articles were recovered, the detectives said, and search is in progress for other merchandise. They requested victims of thefts from cars to call at police headquarters in efforts to identify the recovered goods.

The arrest of a suspect Tuesday night led to the other arrests, the detectives said.

EXPLOSION WRECKS GUNPOWDER FACTORY

LONDON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—A violent explosion wrecked the cordite building in the royal gunpowder factory at Waltham Abbey today, jarring the entire district but, according to the war office, none was killed or injured.

The blast, an official statement said, originated in a cordite stove. There were 20 men in a near-by blending room but they escaped.

Fire broke out but was quickly controlled by the factory's fire brigade and authorities said plant operations were able to proceed.

GENERAL REVISION OF TAX STRUCTURE IS NEEDED—ROPER

Commerce Secretary Confident 'Utilities Dilemma' Will Be Solved.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Secretary of Commerce Roper cited the "need of a general revision of our entire tax structure" in a message to the nation's businessmen tonight.

He expressed confidence the "utilities dilemma" would be solved, advocated equal responsibility between labor organizations and management, stressed the importance of reducing the national debt as well as balancing the budget, espoused "immediate and constructive" treatment of the railroads' financial problems and hailed the projected building construction program.

Outlines Views.

The secretary outlined his views in an address prepared for delivery before the Commerce Department's business advisory council.

To the business and industrial executives who are members of the council, President Roosevelt sent a telegram which said in part:

"I am looking forward to meeting with all of you at the earliest practicable date so we may have the opportunity of talking over the problems that affect us so vitally. I am confident that appropriate action can lead to increased employment and more effective purchasing power in the hands of great masses of people still without adequate income."

Discussing the tax on undistributed corporate earnings, Mr. Roper said:

"Treasury records indicate that the tax did lead to a marked increase in the percentage of corporate profits disbursed as dividends during 1936 and there is evidence to show that the tax also caused increases in corporate operating expenses in the area of wages, bonuses, advertising, maintenance, research, etc. It is already evident that such situations are receiving the sympathetic consideration of the treasury in its recommendations to congress on the revision of the 1936 revenue act, as indicated by Secretary Morgenthau's recent statement and in the President's message to congress on November 15."

5 POLICEMEN FACE HEARING TOMORROW

Malcom Will Propose 14
Downtown Traffic
Arteries.

Five Atlanta police officers face trial tomorrow night at the police committee meeting at which Captain Jack Malcom proposes to outline a proposal for establishment of 14 downtown traffic arteries as one-way streets to relieve traffic congestion.

A. D. Poole, suspended by Chief Hornsby on charges of drunkenness, preferred by Mrs. Poole; Radio Patrolman J. M. Jones, charged with drinking; Patrolman G. M. Hailey, charged with neglect of duty; Patrolman W. H. Pope, accused of being absent without leave, and Patrolman R. D. Scott, charged with conduct unbecoming an officer are those slated to face the committee.

Malcom yesterday amplified his former plan to establish four major one-way arteries, and included 10 other streets which he will urge the committee to "try out" at the session.

ARBITRATION BOARD FOR STATE FORMED

Ten Named To Advise on Labor Policies.

A 10-man advisory committee to serve with the State Department of Labor as a board of arbitration was set up yesterday by Judge T. E. Whitaker, state commissioner of labor.

In appointing the non-salaried committee of five employers and five employees, Judge Whitaker explained that its function will be to advise with the labor department on policies and the formation of rules and regulations for safety in industries.

An eleven member, neutral businessman, is to be selected by the employer and employee members to serve as chairman, while Judge Whitaker will act in an ex-officio capacity.

Named on the committee were: T. M. Forbes, representative of cotton manufacturers; E. C. Houston, for the utilities; C. C. Glenn, representing retail merchants; J. P. McGrath, for manufacturers; Hugh Roberts, representative of contractors, and Albert W. Gossett, W. Lee Sorrells, Paul Chipman, Lon Millwood and Rufus Johnson, representing employees. All are residents of Atlanta.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking waste acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes wash out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Unexpected Gifts Thrill Chewing Gum Girl

A surprise birthday party yesterday thrilled Ruth Reese, seller of chewing gum and candy in downtown stores and buildings, when she made her call at offices of the HOLC, 10 Forsyth street. George R. Jones is presenting gifts to the girl, as other employees look on.

Party Surprises Little Gum Girl On 12th Birthday

When the bell sounded yesterday afternoon to mark the close of another day at the Crew Street school, brown-eyed Ruth Reese, a pupil in the sixth grade, hurried from the building as usual.

Ruth had to be downtown reasonably early, with her stock of chewing gum and candy. Otherwise, she might be late on her rounds of office buildings and stores. And lateness would never do. The money from her sales meant too much to her parents and family.

Hurried on Rounds.

So Ruth hurried on her rounds, as she has been doing for the past five years, ever since she was seven.

Yesterday, she was eagerly awaited at the offices of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, 10 Forsyth street. Her eyes widened when she walked into the office promptly at 2 o'clock.

A big birthday cake, glowing with light from 12 candles, stood on a desk. On a nearby table stood candy and other gifts. It was all for her 12th birthday, she discovered.

Surprise Party.

George Jones, assistant manager in charge of property management, and others in the office had arranged the surprise party for the little seller of chewing gum.

"I've always wanted a birthday cake and a birthday party," said Ruth, happily. In fact, she explained, she had planned such a treat for herself last week. But the money she earned from her sales went on to pay part of the rent on the Reese home on Pulliam street.

INSURGENT LOSSES REPORTED IN SPAIN

Government Says Five Attacks Southwest of Toledo Were Futile.

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Spanish government reports tonight said the insurgents lost heavily in five futile attacks on government positions southwest of Toledo on the west bank of the Tagus river.

Government soldiers entrenched in olive groves were said to have moved down the enemy infantry with machine-guns as it sought to advance.

Insurgent headquarters announced the clean-up of government resistance in the northern province of Asturias was completed with the slaying of the last chiefs and bands holding out in mountain strongholds.

From Bilbao came the announcement that the "iron ring" fortifications around the Basque port city, which failed to halt the insurgent forces, would be preserved as an attraction for tourists.

Conant Bush-Brown, distinguished Atlanta painter, was unveiled during the "home-coming" program for Tech alumni.

I'LL WAIT FOR HER, CULBERTSON SAYS

Bridge Ace Hopes 'She'll Marry Me Again'; Sails for Europe.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(P)—Ely Culbertson, bridge authority whose wife has decided to get a Reno divorce and remain only his bridge partner, sailed for Europe today.

CHECK THIS STATEMENT!

The biggest laugh the screen has ever known is Bert Laursing the "Song of the Woodman" in MERRY-GO ROUND OF 1938"

Horse, Hit by Auto, Kicks in Windshield

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 1.—(P)—Bumped by an auto driven by Augustus Hoffman here today, a horse retaliated by climbing up on the hood of the car and kicking in the windshield, Hoffman reported to police.

Neither Hoffman nor the horse's driver, Louis Gordon, was injured, police said. The horse also was unharmed.

saying, "I'll be waiting for her any time she wants to come back."

"I hope some day she'll want to marry me again," he added.

The liner Queen Mary's whistle boomed, and Culbertson looked mournful.

Won't Wed Another. "I told her," he said, "that I'll never marry any other woman; and she may find that the old devil is a little better than any new devil."

As an afterthought Culbertson added that if he ever did marry another woman it would be "a spirited English woman who looked like Mrs. Culbertson."

The bridge expert's wife said before departing for Reno that the divorce grounds would be mental cruelty due to her husband's "ultra-temperamental moods."

On Volcano Verge. Culbertson said his wife had told him sometimes she felt she was "on the verge of a volcano" or "walking a tight-rope over a precipice" because he was so nervous. Standing forlornly in the door of his cabin, he reflected, "this will be the first Christmas in nearly 14 years that I've been away from my wife and children."

He said he was going to London to arrange for the publication of his autobiography in England; that he would buy some clothes, and return the middle of February.

PRESSURE BREAKING PAY BILL DEADLOCK

withdrawal of some of the signatures.

Representative Cox, Democrat, Georgia, an outspoken critic of the bill, said he knew at least one name which would be taken off the list tomorrow and predicted others would follow.

Meanwhile, the American Federation of Labor, which is opposed to many features of the wage-hour bill, announced a meeting of its executive council for December 3 to draft proposed amendments.

While the off-the-floor conflict engrossed members of house and senate alike, both chambers resounded to debate on the farm bill, the house concluding a general discussion of the measure, and the senate hearing Oklahoma's version of what should be done for the farmer.

Agrees Money Plan.

There, Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, occupied half the day with an exposition of the theory that if the buying power of money were shifted in accordance with the ups and downs of crop prices, the farmer's worries would disappear.

His colleague, Senator Lee, Democrat, Oklahoma, took up the other half of the session with an argument for the domestic allotment plan, under which the farmer would receive such a cash subsidy on his crops as would cover the difference between their price on the market and a predetermined level.

Sees Threat to Lint.

Wallace warned the authors of the senate farm bill its "restrictive" provisions would have the effect of reducing the export outlet of American cotton.

The agriculture secretary wrote Senators Pope, Democrat, Idaho, and McGill, Democrat, Kansas, marketing quota provisions of their measure, now being debated by the senate, would restrict the annual supply to a quantity which would hold American prices out of line with the world price level.

"The cotton farmers might for the time being gain in price this way," he said, "but the temporary gains from price would eventually be more than offset by losses in volume."

He said the bill would put marketing quotas into effect when supplies reached 17,500,000 bales. He suggested that the supply level should be raised to around 21,000,000 bales.

Would Cut Loan Rate.

He also suggested the minimum loan rate on cotton be reduced from 85 to 55 per cent of parity—the price objective of the proposed program.

He suggested a "tariff-equalizing tax," levied on processors, to raise funds to supplement income growers receive for cotton sold at world price levels.

Wallace also suggested the method of acreage allotments for cotton be revised. "As now drawn, the bill would tend to freeze cotton production in uneconomic areas," he said.

He also declared the measure would remove requirement that growers comply with the 1938 cotton acreage program to become eligible for the 3-cent-a-pound price adjustment payments authorized by the last congress.

The farm chief estimated this program might cost twice as much as the half-billion dollars now being spent annually on the "soil conservation" program.

Defy House Leaders.

Meanwhile a house farm bloc headed by Representative Patman, Democrat, Texas, defied leaders to enact crop control legislation unless it provided for parity prices.

The bloc announced it would draft a schedule of government parity payments on all farm produce at a meeting tomorrow and offer it as an amendment to the crop loan section of the pending bill.

Falling to get the amendment adopted, Patman said, the bloc would engineer a move on the floor to discard all attempts to pass farm legislation. Some legislators said the bloc would muster an initial voting strength of 100.

The pending program centers on "soil conservation" payments to induce farmers to comply with acreage and marketing quotas.

The house agriculture committee recommended cotton farmers producing an average of three bales or less a year be exempted from both acreage and marketing quotas.

It also proposed producers of a commodity voting in a national referendum on the question of invoking a marketing program do not sign their ballots.

Housing Hearings.

Committees of both houses continued hearings on President Roosevelt's anti-depression proposal that the cost of financing new home building be cut to stir up a prosperity-spreading boom in the construction industry.

Before the house banking committee, Chairman Jesse H. Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, maintained that the down payments on government-insured mortgages could be reduced at no cost to the government. The important thing, he said, was to keep monthly payments "about equivalent to rents."

"I have no fear that this will be an expensive operation for the government," he said. "My only fear is the people won't take advantage of it."

Gift, Estate Taxes.

A house tax subcommittee decided to make it easier for taxpayers to figure out their estate and gift taxes. It shuffled exemptions in a manner which Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Kentucky, said should produce more than $115,000,000 extra revenue.

The simplification, he said, would involve applying a system of "effective" levies to that single, flat rate would be paid on an estate. The rate would depend on the estate's size.

Under present law, rates are graduated and a taxpayer pays different rates on different portions of an estate.

Diver in New Suit Sinks 420 Feet; Claims a Record

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 1.—(P)—Observers aboard the Coastguard Cutter Antietam reported that Max E. (Gene) Nohl, 27-year-old Milwaukee diver, had descended 420 feet into Lake Michigan in a new type diving suit today and claimed to have broken all records.

Dr. Edgar End, Marquette University associate of the diver, said Nohl, at the maximum depth, was under a body pressure of 198 pounds to the square inch.

The record for depth in a diving suit was credited to Frank Grilley, of the United States Navy, with 306 feet. Nohl made his 420-foot descent on his second dive, breathing a mixture of helium and oxygen from a tank on his back and conversing steadily with End.

SENATE WALKS OUT ON THOMAS' SPEECH

Less Than Dozen Hear Talk on Stabilized Dollar.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(P)—Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, chided fellow lawmakers today for inattention to his suggestions for a "stabilized dollar."

Less than a dozen senators remained at their desks when the Oklahomaan concluded a lengthy speech urging congress to exercise powers over the "value of our dollar."

"Here we are 150 years old and supposed to be an intelligent nation, with intelligent congressmen and senators," the white-haired senator said, pointing to empty chairs about him.

"Yet, we won't even sit and listen to anything on this most vital issue."

CUT IN EXPENSES BEGUN BY FULTON

tions with a reference to the special presentations of the September-October grand jury which indicated savings could be accomplished by cutting of county personnel, Longino said that further economies of this type would be made before January 1.

He reminded the commission that each commissioner has authority to make such changes as he sees fit in his department, and moved that each committee head reduce the number of automobiles used by his department. Motion was passed unanimously.

By law the salaries of elective department heads must be fixed at least 30 days before the end of the year. Consideration of salaries which must be fixed at least 10 days before the new year was deferred.

At that time heads of all departments will be summoned to recommend economies in their departments, it was said.

The grand jury recommended that many salaries should be reduced as being higher than corresponding salaries in private business, but it was intimated present salaries will not be changed. Economies effected will be in further slashing of personal and operating expenses.

On motion of Commissioner Longino it was agreed to place the words "Fulton County Official Duty" or some similar marking on all county cars.

The commission selected W. S. McLarin Jr. to the post on the Board of Public Welfare vacated by the recent retirement of Robert Strickland. The election is subject to the ratification of the State Board of Public Welfare.

SISTER-IN-LAW IS OUT WITH STORY

Mrs. Bessie Huff, 496 Blvd., N. E., Recalls Sister's Advice Last Year.

In telling of her experience, Mrs. Huff, who is employed at the Hub Store on Whitehall street, said, "About a year ago I was on a visit in the home of my sister-in-law. At that time, and for two years before, I had been troubled with a bad cough which persisted in spite of the fact that I had tried every kind of cough remedy I had ever heard of. My sister-in-law had in her medicine chest a bottle of cough medicine called Menthomulson. She insisted that I take a dose of it. The first teaspoonful helped me so much that I used Menthomulson for the next day or two and my cough entirely disappeared and never returned until I took cold about six months ago. I immediately got a bottle of Menthomulson from my druggist and within a day or two my cough and cold disappeared entirely. Since that time I have had occasion to use Menthomulson again, and received the same wonderful results from it."—(Adv.)

FRANCE TO ASSURE EUROPEAN ALLIES

Delbos Will Tell Poland and Little Entente Germany Won't Have Free Hand.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—(P)—Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos will leave tomorrow on a tour of four capitals to patch France's political fences and to seek to quiet fears Britain may be ready to abandon eastern Europe to Germany.

He hopes to get a new promise from the countries—Poland and the Little Entente allies, Rumania, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia—of faithfulness to their alliances with France.

Speaking on behalf of both Britain and France, following a mandate given him in London during the recent Anglo-French consultations, foreign office sources said, Delbos would give France's allies assurance Britain stood with his country and had refused to give Germany a "free hand" in central Europe.

Defense Minister Edouard Daladier told the army commission of the chamber of deputies: "Our armed forces are ready and able to keep all our obligations."

2 Are Baptized After Conversion In Prison Camp

Conversion within prison bars was revealed last night when two men now serving terms at the DeKalb county prison camp were baptized at the Kirkwood Baptist church, Howard street and Delano drive, N. E.

The men were Bee Dyer, 32, of Atlanta, who has served eight months of a six-year term for receiving stolen goods, and Lee Jones, 23-year-old South Carolinian, who has served two months of a four-month term for vagrancy.

Accompanied by a guard, W. D. Wright, the men, in civilian garb, sat in the audience as the pastor, Dr. K. Owen White, conducted a prayer meeting. Toward the close of the service, they stepped forward and expressed their desire to "commit their lives to Christ."

The members present voted unanimously to accept the converts, and the group went to the church auditorium. The baptisms followed, Jones being immersed in the baptistry first and Dyer following.

I. H. Mehaffey, of 47 Kirkwood road, a deacon of the church, said that the men sought baptism several weeks ago, and arrangements were made with the Georgia Prison Commission for them to attend the service.

The converts returned to the prison camp after the baptism.

Bronchial Coughs Need Creomulsion

Just a common cough, a chest cold, or a bronchial irritation of today may lead to serious trouble tomorrow. They may be relieved now with Creomulsion, an emulsified Croscote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medicinal combination designed to aid nature in soothing and healing infected mucous membranes by slaying irritation and inflammation and by aiding in loosening and expelling the germ-laden phlegm.

The Medical Profession has for many years recognized the beneficial effect of Beechwood Croscote in the treatment of coughs, chest colds, and bronchial irritations. A special process was worked out by a chemist for blending Croscote with other ingredients and now in Creomulsion you get a real dose of genuine Beechwood Croscote which is palatable and can even be taken frequently and continuously by both adults and children. Creomulsion is one preparation that goes to the very seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. When coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles—due to common colds—hang on, get a bottle of Creomulsion from your druggist, use it as directed and if you are not satisfied with the relief obtained the druggist is authorized to refund every cent of your money. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief that you want. ATLANTA Y. W. C. A. HOST TO NATIONAL BOARD EXECUTIVES

Three-Day Round-Table Discussions Begin Today; Many Talks Scheduled.

Atlanta, selected by the Y. W. C. A. national board as one of the four places for round-table discussions on religion, will be hostess today, tomorrow and Saturday to Mlle. de Dietrich, of France; Dr. A. D. Beittel, of North Carolina; Miss Winnifred Wygal, Miss Annie Kate Gilbert, of New York, and 30 leaders from associations in the southern region.

Invited by the New York offices, this group represents a cross section of employed, volunteer and student leadership who are in close touch with religious trends. Mlle. de Dietrich, who has been among the French representatives of the World's Council of the Y. W. C. A. in Geneva, is now in this country studying present-day religious trends and their significance to a world-wide organization such as the Y. W. C. A. She was formerly the executive secretary of the World's Student Christian Federation. Having led two discussion groups in New York city, she will go to Chicago, after visiting Atlanta and then return to Europe before Christmas.

Dean of College. Dr. Beittel, who is dean of Guilford College, in North Carolina, has worked closely with community and student groups during the past few years and has visited many southern colleges. As former pastor of Collegiate church, Nashville, Tenn., and as speaker on religious resources at Blue Ridge student conferences, Dr. Beittel is keenly alert to trends in this section.

Miss Winnifred Wygal, of the Y. W. C. A. national board, is secretary for programs in religion, and is widely known in Atlanta where she has led conferences and discussions. Skilled in many phases of association activities, Miss Wygal is experienced in interpreting religion to young women in student groups. She has done graduate work at Union Seminary as well as special reading with Dr. H. B. Sharnan, of the Pendle Hill Quaker Center for graduate study, and with Canon Streeter, of Oxford.

Confer With Leaders. Miss Annie Kate Gilbert, national board's advisory secretary for the southern region, will confer with visiting leaders.

This seminar is in preparation for the world council meeting to be held in 1938 in Geneva. Sessions will begin Thursday afternoon and continue through Saturday morning, with the Atlanta Y. W. C. A. co-operating with the local student office in entertaining guests.

Away 20 Years, Slayer Near Jail, Just Drops In

SANTA FE, N. M., Dec. 1.—(P)—Marcos Leos was in the neighborhood, so, according to Warden M. McManus, he voluntarily returned to New Mexico's penitentiary to complete a term broken by escape 20 years ago.

The warden looked up from his desk to see Leos, his wife and the youngest of their nine children standing before him.

"What can I do for you?" he asked.

"I'm surprised you don't remember me," the visitor replied.

Warden McManus said Leos explained he had been visiting relatives in southern New Mexico and decided he ought to finish a 10-year term for manslaughter started in 1915. Two years after his commitment the prisoner escaped from a road camp.

His escape came at the time of the Villa revolution in Mexico, and the records show he participated in "a brawl with drunken Old Mexico Mexicans" over whether Leos was a Villista or a Carrancista.

The warden said Leos had resided in Illinois, Missouri and Oklahoma during his 20 years of liberty, working mostly at day labor.

Winged Cruisers For Navy Seen By Air Leader

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 1.—(P)—A forecast of "Winged Cruisers" for the world's fighting forces capable of flying indefinitely through refueling in the air was made tonight by Gill Robb Wilson, aviation director for the state of New Jersey, on the eve of a national conference on aviation problems. The National Association of State Aviation officials, of which Wilson is president, will open a three-day meeting, only five days in advance of the general round-table on airports in Washington called by Colonel J. Monroe Johnson, assistant secretary of commerce.

"Navies of the future will have their winged cruisers," said Wilson, a wartime aviator, and great cargo ships will be catapulted across the continent non-stop.

"But next week's conference in Washington must grapple realistically with the shortage in airport facilities."

"The development of modern aircraft has practically been brought to a stop through the lack of a national airport policy."

All Who'll Work Promised Jobs On City Pay Roll

CINCINNATI, Dec. 1.—(P)—There were many volunteers for "work at the workhouse."

"This city of 600,000 starts its experiment in city-made employment for every able-bodied man willing to work" to meet the charge that "you can't get people to work."

Response to the plan has been "far beyond our expectations," said Welfare Director Caswell. More than 2,600 relief recipients registered, he said.

Starting tomorrow, 100 men will be called daily to report to the city workhouse to tear down old buildings on several projects at 50 cents an hour.

The new city workers will be paid by voucher, exchangeable for food, clothing or anything except the payment of back debts, officials declared.

F. D. R. Letter Cheers Suffering Youngster
NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(UP)—Twelve-year-old Hudson Alexander, of Franklin, Tenn., who has been confined to the orthopaedic hospital here since September 8 with a spinal ailment, said he felt especially well since he received a letter from President Roosevelt wishing him an early recovery. He sent the letter to his parents.

As close as he could remember, he said, the message read: "Dear Hudson: I have learned today of your stay in the hospital. I know it has been a hard fight but you will find that it is well worth it. Write and let me know how you are getting along. Keep your chin up."

"Sincerely,
(Signed)
FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

2 EX-MARINES LOSE PLEA FOR RELEASE

Underwood Sustained by Appeal Court in Counterfeiting Case.

Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood has been sustained by the fifth circuit court of appeals in his refusal to release Monroe Bridwell and John A. Johnson, former marines, who are now serving sentences of four and one-half years in the Atlanta federal penitentiary for counterfeiting. The men had left the service at the time of the crime.

The two men brought writs of habeas corpus, claiming they had been denied their constitutional rights by not being furnished counsel at their trial in South Carolina. They also claimed they had not been given sufficient time to appeal before they were sent to the penitentiary. One of the Scottsboro cases was cited in support of the first contention.

The circuit court of appeals held they were not illiterate or ignorant and that the trial was not "a sham and pretense" as alleged in the petition. The circuit judges also held there was not sufficient reason to show that the men were not given sufficient time to bring an appeal.

KEEP OUT OF WAR, VETERANS DEMAND

Signatures on Petitions to Congress Will Be Sought Here.

Signatures of the majority of residents of Atlanta and Fulton county will be sought by Greater Atlanta Post No. 390, Veterans of Foreign Wars, for petitions calling upon congress to keep America out of war, it was announced yesterday.

The appeal asks congress and President Roosevelt "to adopt and apply policies designed to keep America out of war and supported by a national defense program adequate for the protection of our country and its people."

Petition blanks were received yesterday by Commander Kenneth Murrell from national headquarters at Kansas City, Mo. The blanks will be circulated by members of Post No. 390, and distributed to various other local civic, patriotic, religious and fraternal groups.

"Petitions bearing the signatures of 25,000,000 American citizens will tell congress in unmistakable terms that the vast majority of the citizens of the United States want America to keep out of war," Commander Murrell pointed out.

INSTALLMENT XXXIV.

Tennington paced. Sally picked up a book, began to read it... up-side down. Dr. Woodrow, his aesthetic eyes shadowed, tried to light a pipe, gave up after the fourth match flickered out.

April, her whole body cold as death, was striving for mental orderliness. As yet she hardly realized what had happened. A kaleidoscopic swirl of mind pictures passed before her in dizzying sequence... fused.

Fortuna and Boorsma had been conspirators to get control of the Ferris estate. They were professional confidence workers, and the woman had never even known Mort, much less married to him. No great shock, for April had long suspected the truth. Greater was the shock of the woman's admission she would have betrayed her co-impoter if she could have won Gil's love. Significant, that Fortuna had dared everything for love, and lost.

April could even find great pity in her heart for Fortuna, the actress, the thief, the impostor. Both had wanted the same thing, yet now Fortuna lay still in death, while she, at least, lived. Which, though, was the most fortunate? She stirred restlessly in Bob's embrace, stood up and buried her head in her hands.

"I can't stand it," she thought, hysterically. Then, wondering, as a faint light, what the thought had meant. Perhaps the storm had given it birth. Yes, that was it, the storm. Its never-diminishing cannonade, the quivering of the floor beneath her feet, the knowledge that this was but the beginning of long hours of fear and panic and helpless waiting.

Against Ronnie's orders she went to one of the windows, peered between the cracks of the heavy hurricane shutters, stared in fascinated awe. For the most part the scene was blotted out by a solid rampart of rain... rain moving horizontally! She felt as if she were under the sea, looking into the haunts of whip-ray and shark. A weird purple hue was this sea... unreal, ghastly.

Then the water parted for an instant, and she gasped. The grounds showed a scene of devastation and desolation. Hardly a blade of grass remained where once had been lush lawns, stately trees, fine shrubbery. Even as she looked a giant palm shot across her vision, as though plucked from earth by a colossus at drifted uncannily toward the sky. Then it whirled in sudden change of direction and was thrown with shattering force against the garage and servants' quarters.

She screamed, staggered away from the window and rushed sobbing to Sally. "It's horrible, horrible!" she cried.

The others stared, made no move. They had ceased to be thinking men and women. They were but atoms in a universe that they knew was crumbling. There was no will left in them. They could only wait stupidly for the end.

Solution to Yesterday's Puzzle.

Water began to drop slowly from the ceiling. They watched it. The drops merged into a steady stream, then a piece of plaster fell, shattering in a shower of white on the rug.

Came a pause in the hurricane's howl, a split-second respite, then the wind struck again with a blow so mighty it shook ornaments from the wall.

From above came a new sound... the cracking of timbers. The roof!

"Now we'll all die," thought April. She lifted her head, saw Gil looking at her. "But I don't want to die!" she cried aloud. "I want to live... to live..."

Gil's eyes were flames that lighted up depths within him she had never seen before. And they carried a message, a message at once thrilling, tender, compelling.

She stood up. Took a step. Another. His eyes still held her captive...

Then he, too, stood up. Held out his arms. And the last fortress of her heart fell. She stumbled to him, threw herself into his embrace.

And there, as though they were the only beings left in the world, they kissed. Kissed with the fierce intensity of a man and woman who see oblivion stalking. Who must make the most of the short time left to live!

April had long ago lost track of time. There was no past, no future, just the present—present consisting wholly of the hurricane's roar, the sway and creak of Hurricane House, and the beat of Gil's heart against which her cheek lay as she nestled in his arms. Only the latter mattered.

Here she would stay secure, happy, peaceful, until at last the storm claimed them and death would find them clasped in everlasting embrace.

She was not afraid of dying. Not now. Not with Gil. Hadn't she through suffering and pain found the man she loved? What more could life hold? It would be good... good, sweet and wonderful.

She passed into another sphere in Gil's arms.

She sighed, snuggled closer. Bob? The rest? She looked at them from her haven, saw them pityingly. Bob looked like a thundercloud, rage twisted his features.

What matter? He must have known all along she did not love him, could never love him. He had forfeited his right to her a thousand times since that night on the yacht. If life were not ending for them all here, she would have had to explain, to ask release from her promise to marry him. Now that would be unnecessary. Convention, too, would be blown away with the rest of man-made things.

She turned her head upward, begging soundlessly for Gil's lips. He kissed her, and she floated into a heaven where nothing existed but her overpowering love for him.

His embrace was a bulwark against all fear.

Too soon the kiss ended. She sighed, smiled and lay back again, watching his face. "I love you," he said, in her ear. "I love you, my darling! It has been so long..."

"I love you," she answered, her lips forming the words soundlessly. "Hold me close, dearest!"

He tightened his embrace. She buried her face in his neck.

Ronnie's voice came knifing through the wondrous, enveloping haze of contentment.

"Take it easy, Morrison! Acting like this won't help any."

She opened her eyes, saw Bob standing close by, gesticulating, his face suffused with purple.

"She can't treat me like this!" he was shouting. "I'll wring both their necks..."

Gil sat erect, stood up as Bob advanced. Quickly, though she was still weak with the weakness of ecstasy, she stepped between them. "Bob! You don't understand. I... I love Gil!"

It was then she made an astonishing discovery. Her voice, though but a whisper, could be heard clearly. No longer did the hurricane fill the air with turbulent blasts of sound. No more did the house shake.

"Listen..." she cried in wonder, "it's the lull!"

"Damn the lull," Bob grated, dangerously. "What's the idea of acting like this? Have you gone crazy?"

"I've gone sane," she exulted. "Sane for the first time in my life."

Bob took a step toward her, and Gil cocked a defending fist, but Ronnie spoke sharply.

"Snap out of it, all of you! You've got to realize that no one acts normal at a time like this. Whatever happens here today is the result of strain, fear... reversion to type."

April looked at him curiously and shook her head a little. What had happened between her and Gil was real, real! And she knew it would last as long as life itself.

"This is the lull of the storm now," Ronnie went on, pulling Bob away and speaking to the whole room. "And you know what that means. The worst of the hurricane is coming. We're safe so far, but we can't lose of heads. The barometer right now stands at 27.85 and it's slipping fast. I don't know what's going to happen, and none of you do, but for your own sakes, try to get a grip on yourselves."

His words died in the uncanny stillness. No one made an answer. April looked at each of their white faces in turn: McIntyre licking his lips nervously, Morinda Eggleston trying to control a twitching muscle in her patrician face, little Sally puffing quickly at a cigaret, Tennington cowering like an aged mouse in the corner, Dr. Woodrow pulling at his jaw, playing with his glasses, Bob turning away with a nasty gleam in his eyes. Then she looked at Gil's calm, unworried face, knew that what Ronnie had said was true—during a time of a strain like this the thin patina of civilization was stripped away. Yet unselfish adoration had saved Gil and herself from that stark revealing process. Of all those in the room, she and Gil were the only wholly normal people. Their love had kept them immune.

Yet Ronnie seemed self-possessed enough. He gestured them to chairs and swung to the motion-picture projector he had set up at one end of the room.

"I'm going to make sure none of you go outside," he said, grimly. "We don't know when the second half of the storm will hit, so it's best for everyone to stay put. Just to while away the time, though, we'll look at some pictures. I'll calm you... and myself, I hope. There'll be refreshments in directly. Now relax."

Ronnie snapped out the lights, and a small screen he had hung near the fireplace came to life with a scene taken in the Alps. Music flooded the room as Ronnie turned on a synchronized transcription record.

April barely looked at the screen. She was content to sit nestling against Gil. If this were only the beginning rather than the end... if she could be sure that tomorrow they would still be walking the earth, alive, together... that would be heaven indeed. Still, she was grateful for these last few hours... it was recompense of a kind.

Continued Tomorrow.

UNCLE RAY'S

FROM PARIS TO SWITZERLAND.

Basel, Switzerland: This morning I boarded a railroad train, and at 14:30 o'clock (a European way of saying 2:30 p. m.) I reached Basel, just across the Swiss border.

Riding through France, I thought back over the eight days I had spent in Paris. The French capital city seems a more pleasing place to visit than in the early years after the World War. The people seem less strained and worried, and the taxicab drivers are a little more polite.

Basel is built on both sides of the Rhine river, and is in a corner of Switzerland which touches Germany as well as France.

Basel traces its history back to Roman times. During the Middle Ages, there was a wall around the city. This wall has been torn down, but a few of the olden "gates" still stand.

Not far from Basel is the place where 1,300 Swiss soldiers fought against 25,000 French soldiers close to 500 years ago. Almost all the Swiss were killed or wounded, but the French losses were so heavy that the invasion of Switzerland was given up.

Switzerland has seldom taken part in war during recent centuries. This is probably the main reason the people are so fine and strong. Switzerland contains people who speak German, French and Italian, and they live at peace with one another.

NLRB Intervenes in Week-Old UAW Walkout at Ford Plant.

Issues Statement. Federal Labor Conciliator John L. Conner, who negotiated the settlement, issued the following statement:

"I am glad to announce a complete settlement of the strike now existing on the Greyhound lines. I have received the sincere cooperation of both sides in my efforts to bring about the settlement. The accord reached is satisfactory to both parties."

The wage increase becomes effective July 1, 1938.

There were scattered instances of violence during the strike.

5 Men Hurt. Five men went to a Boston hotel yesterday after a street fight between men conveying a Greyhound bus and a number of unidentified men. A police riot squad arrested eight men and booked them as suspicious persons.

The National Labor Relations Board intervened yesterday in the week-old strike of the United Automobile Workers of America against the Ford Motor Company in St. Louis.

A complaint, issued by Miss Dorothea De Schweinitz, labor board regional director, cited the company to appear at a hearing December 16 to answer allegations of unfair labor practices in dealing with the employees of its St. Louis assembly plant.

GEORGIANS SET UP POLICY COMMITTEE

Organization, Sponsored by Welnert, Will Study State's Problems.

By The Associated Press. Leaders from all over the state met here last night to organize the Georgia Policy Committee.

Dr. Philip Welnert, Atlanta attorney, was selected chairman and Orville A. Park, Macon attorney, was named vice chairman of the organization, which will study Georgia's outstanding problems and make efforts to remedy them.

Nearly 100 men and women attended the meeting. Brooks Hays, chairman of the Arkansas Policy Committee and Democratic national committeeman of Arkansas, explained accomplishments of the organization in his state in the year and a half since it has been formed.

How It Works.

"A cross-section group of Arkansians met in open forum discussion, such as we are here tonight, to decide what the state's most serious problems were," said Hays. "A committee was named to collect facts and suggest remedies. We decided that farm tenancy was one of our worst evils and we began studying and working on that. Then we found also that adult education was another serious problem."

Issues on which the organization still was in "its infancy," he said. The Governor adopted the 10-point program of the committee as his platform "because it was practical" and now had committees working to shape the points into bills for legislation.

The Georgia group agreed to set up a fact-finding committee to distribute information among its membership.

Welnert Calls Meeting.

Dr. Welnert, former chancellor of the University of Georgia System, issued the call for the meeting.

A number of those present joined in the discussions or asked various questions of Hays. Among those who attended were Warren Roberts, Dr. E. E. Overton, W. T. Anderson, P. T. Anderson, Alan MacDonell, Dr. C. Turpin, Dr. Frank Oliphant, Dr. Otis Knight, Dr. C. C. Harrold and Orville A. Park, of Macon; Pratt Adams and Thomas Aske, of Savannah; Julian Williams, of the Joe C. Manning, of Augusta; Judge Blanton Fortson, Dr. John Morris, Ashley Sellers, Mrs. Alexander Rhodes and Dr. Walter Cuth, of Athens; Milton Fleetwood, H. M. Crane, W. M. H. Collins and W. C. Henson, of Cartersville.

Atlanta's Present.

Dr. Guy Wells, Dr. Harry Little, Dean Hoy Taylor, John Morgan, Slap Rentz and H. M. Massey, of Milledgeville; Professor and Mrs. Andrew Cain, of Dahlonega; Carol Long, of Ocala; Major R. J. SUCCUMBS AT 65

Was Past President of Robert E. Lee Chapter, U. D. C.

Miss Eunice Lee Brown, College Park church and club worker, died yesterday afternoon at her residence, 323 East Temple avenue, after an extended illness. She was 65.

Miss Brown was an active member of the First Baptist church at College Park until she became ill about one year ago. She was a past president of the Robert E. Lee chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy.

POWER PEACE PLAN HELD 'IMPOSSIBLE'

Two Proposals to President by Willkie Opposed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(P)—Some of the peace terms suggested to President Roosevelt by Wendell Willkie, utilities executive, are "impossible" from the administration viewpoint, informed persons said tonight.

The chief executive and the president of the giant Commonwealth & Southern Corporation have reached a tentative agreement on two major issues, it was said, but these points remained at issue.

1—Willkie's proposal that the public utility holding company act of 1935 be modified. (The law should be changed, he said, to eliminate all intermediate holding companies within three years but otherwise confirm existing holding companies in their present ownership of property.)

2—Willkie's suggestion that policies of the Tennessee Valley Authority be modified. (He advocated a compromise arrangement for the generation and distribution of power by both the government and private utilities. The government, he contended, should not make gifts or grants to help municipalities purchase private distribution systems.)

Issues on which the chief executive and Willkie are able to find common ground, it was reported, were:

1—The President's demand for rates based on "prudent investment" in utilities property "used and useful" in producing power. Willkie urged that this new rate-making method be applied only to property acquired since the Roosevelt administration began.

2—Willkie's proposal that the utilities eliminate from their capital stock all "dead weight" hereafter claimed by the Federal Trade Commission.

DE VALERA UPSET
Party Fails To Sweep Galway Elections.

DUBLIN, Dec. 1.—(P)—Only one adherent of Free State President Eamon de Valera was returned to office today in Galway local elections that re-elected Independents and two Laborites.

The results were interpreted as a warning of the strength of his position. They created wide interest because of the recent hint the President might call a general election to seek an absolute majority in the parliament.

The party had counted on the Galway elections as a display of strength. Although it put up seven candidates it polled only about one-fifth of the total votes.

The Less Excess Weight You Carry, the Longer You May Live

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK CITY, Tuesday—The courage of human beings seems to me something beyond price. Yesterday, in the home-stand for which the steel companies are putting up the money and for which the American Friends Service Committee is providing management, I saw a group of women and their children in a little frame house with an open fire on the hearth. They were preparing old rugs and cutting up old stockings to make rugs for their future homes.

Seven families are now living on this project in chicken houses. One family, with six children, has a little brooder house next to the chicken house. In the brooder house, four boys sleep. The beds are double beds, which is probably lucky since the cracks in the walls must let in much wind, so two in a bed serve to keep each other warm. The little coal stove goes out at night. The only other furniture is a table with an oil lamp where the boys' work is spread out. It must take character to do one's lessons on a cold winter evening!

The foundations for the house are built. They are well laid and substantial and one man said to me very proudly: "They'll last a hundred years." What it will mean to have a five or six-room house and some land on which to grow foodstuffs to be canned for the winter, can only be imagined by seeing present conditions. The mines in this region vary. Many of the men work only two or three days a week. Idleness and a mounting grocery bill are not good preparations for a contented mind. A place of their own where they can work in their spare time will solve many of their problems.

I am most anxious to see how this project works out. As we drove away there were invitations to come back to see them again. These certainly found an echo in my heart, for I want to see that particular spot when the houses are up.

At the homestead we parted from Mrs. Cromwell and Miss Paschall, who went to Pittsburgh to fly back to their home. Mrs. Schneider and I went to Greensburg to take the train to New York. We had expected to take the night train from Pittsburgh, but found we could make his train which got us in rather late last night. It was a great relief, for a night on the train is not good preparation for a busy day and this day has certainly been a busy one.

I went to the sale for the blind at 12:30 and then had lunch at the Woman Pays Club. After lunch I presented a copy of my very small book on peace to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, to whom I dedicated it. I feel many of us owe our interest in world peace to her more than to any other woman. Her unselfish giving of herself has been an inspiration to many of us.

In a short time I am going to Radio City to see an exhibition of the Dance International. This is a most interesting undertaking and I am looking forward to it very much.

Martin—Jones.

ALBANY, Ga., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Miss Maria Martin, daughter of Ware Gaillard Martin, of Leesburg, and Edward Vason Jones, of Albany, were married in Tallahassee, Fla., November 27.

The bride was born in Leesburg and attended school in Moultrie, later studying at G. S. C. W., Milledgeville, and Agnes Scott College, Decatur. She graduated from the University of Georgia last June. She is a great-granddaughter of the late Colonel Nelson Tift, founder of Albany.

Mr. Jones is a son of Mrs. P. W. Jones, of Albany. He was born and reared here and after attending school in Albany studied at the University of Georgia and Northwestern University in Chicago. The young couple left here yesterday for a wedding trip.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

OXYGEN DEFICIT AND ANHEDONIA.

Anhedonia is incapacity for happiness, inability to enjoy life. It is a state of mind, of course, but even so, it may depend on a physical condition. A psychologist conceived the trouble. A psychologist is a fellow who sets out to be a physiologist or even a physician, stumbles upon an imposing term or idea, such as inferiority complex or released inhibition, and finds it so popular that he discontinues his studies and takes to writing articles for the magazines and popular books. The one that invented anhedonia might have discovered, had he persevered with his study of physiology, that there is more than just an idea or an attitude in anhedonia.

Another definition of anhedonia is absence of pleasure from the performance of acts which are pleasurable to a normal individual; failure to get a "kick" out of doing things. Some "killjoys" are obviously sick and their sufferings sufficiently explain their cheerless disposition. Others are apparently free, free from any evident disease or ailment, simply lack relish, gusto, zest, well-being, felicity.

Chronic anoxia is what ails a good many of these anhedonics. This is my opinion—probably you will not find it in any textbook or hear it from any authority until 1943 or later. But meanwhile it will do no harm to try it on your anhedonia if you have a touch of it.

Anoxia is a deficit of oxygen in the tissues and cells. Acute anoxia is asphyxia. Chronic anoxia may be due wholly to frequent or daily exposure to carbon monoxide in the atmosphere. The carbon monoxide crowds out oxygen. Again it is often due to slow metabolism or a low metabolic rate. Shallow breathing alone may account for chronic anoxia, although it is hardly possible to correct shallow breathing by conscious active deep breathing. Unconscious or automatic passive deeper breathing induced by a reasonable amount of exercise corrects it; exercise increases the absorption of oxygen by blood, tissues and cells of the body.

Vitamins have a good deal to do with metabolism, the oxidation process. We told here recently how the administration of vitamin D to a hedgehog prevented the hibernation or brought the animal out of its winter dormant state. Vitamin B is essential for the metabolism of carbohydrate material, the main part of human metabolism, energy metabolism, heat metabolism.

Thyroid and perhaps other hormones or ductless gland (endocrine) secretions participate in the control of metabolism. Iodine activates thyroid gland function and increases metabolism, the absorption of oxygen. Girls in their early teens who get insufficient iodine and develop simple goitre, or hypothyroidism without apparent goitre, is characteristically anhedonic, mopey, languid, singularly lacking in the joyous spirit which is normal in youth.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Hereditary Diabetes. You mentioned heredity as being a factor of diabetes. Anxious to prove this, (E. A. H., attorney.) Answer—It is a question of opinion. Perhaps you will get some help by consulting Joshi's "Diabetes" (Lea & Febiger, Philadelphia, 1935) which contains a chapter on the hereditary of a deficiency.

Immunity to Crl. Ben Told vitamin A in halibut liver oil capsules will build resistance to head colds. (A. G.) Answer—I do not believe vitamin A is concerned with immunity. I believe vitamin D tends to build up a low immunity to common respiratory infections, provided you get enough—say 8,000 to 10,000 or 12,000 units a day.

Bowlegs. Is it possible for a girl of 18 to get rid of bowlegs by exercise or any other means? (M. Z.) Answer—No. Bowlegs in a person over six years of age can be straightened only by an orthopedic operation on the bent bones. Accumulation of fat makes the legs appear less bowed.

TURN TO YOUR FAVORITE POEMS IN YOUR QUIET, LONELY HOURS

"HOME IS THE SAILOR, HOME FROM SEA AND THE HUNTER HOME FROM THE HILL"

How tantalizing are the fragments of poetry that come to mind in lonely hours. You recall a lovely line or two—but how does the rest of the poem go? You may find some of these lines which elude you among the following verses. They are from poems that inspire thousands. How many do you know?

Number One
"In the world's broad field of battle,
In the bivouac of life,
Be not like dumb, driven cattle!
Be a hero in the strife!"

Number Two
"Thy hyacinth hair, thy classic face,
Thy Naiad airs have brought me home
To the glory that was Greece
And the grandeur that was Rome."

Number Three
"Then why should I sit in the scorned seat,
Or hurl the cynic's ban?—
Let me live in my house by the side of the road
And be a friend to man."

Your Figure, Madam

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

IF YOU ARE STREAMLINED, YOU LIVE LONGER.

If you keep your weight down after 40 you not only look younger, but you live longer... and statistics prove it.

In a study of 300,000 policyholders a relatively high mortality rate was found to prevail among women who are overweight. Dr. Louis I. Dublin, statistician for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, declares "the penalty of overweight becomes more pronounced with age. After 40, women who are moderately underweight live the longest."

The weight tendency of the average woman is in direct contradiction to the laws of health and longevity. Instead of maintaining normal weight or, as recommended, a weight that is slightly under the accepted average after the age of 30, she continues to take on excess pounds.

According to Dr. Dublin's figures, the average gain is three pounds between the ages of 25 and 30; seven between 30 and 40, and six pounds between 40 and 50. If your weight increase is only average, you will be 16 pounds overweight by the time you are 50. Unfortunately, this probable increase is under-statement since the excessive overweight is not included in these figures.

It is difficult to tell what your normal weight should be. Even the weight charts allow for a gradual increase as you grow older. Do not overlook the fact, however, that these charts are based on average weights and not on normal weight for the individual.

If your build varies from the normal there is still another possibility of error in calculating your normal weight. The charts do not make any allowance for variation in structure. In general, the stocky individual with the broad chest and comparatively short legs should not weigh less than stipulated by the charts, while the slender girl with narrow chest and slight structure could be obese if she conformed to the average given for her height. Structure as well as height should be the basis for computing normal weight.

Here is a good rule based on structure and height to be used in determining your weight: If you are very small boned, allow 100 pounds for five feet of height. If you have a medium size frame, allow 105 pounds, and if your frame is large, allow 110 pounds for their first five feet of height. Add five and one-half pounds for each inch by which your height exceeds five feet.

Normal weight for the girl of five feet four inches can vary from 122 pounds to 132 pounds in accordance with her structure. The weight charts would have the small, stocky or large girl of the given height weigh the same and, furthermore, there is an allowance for a weight gain as the person grows older. Adopt a health program that will bring your weight to normal for your height and structure. Keep slim after 40. Slimming Menu to Balance the Scales.

Pleasant Homes

By ELIZABETH McRAE BOYKIN

I'll make new curtains.

"My dining room has me down," writes Mrs. T. H. B. "Because it looks empty, yet I don't know what to buy for it. I enclose a rough sketch of the floor plan and would certainly appreciate any suggestions you might make. I have table and chairs in early American maple and a plain blue rug. I want to buy some more furniture but can't see where it could be put and I'd like to have the walls papered and will make new curtains, but I'm at a loss as to what would be best."

The trouble, of course, is that her wall spaces are so broken up by windows and doors... there are two sets of double windows on two walls of the room, and the other two walls are broken by the arch into the living room and the door into the kitchen. Our suggestion would be to use a pair of corner cupboards in maple which would give a feeling of being furnished to the room and yet make use of otherwise difficult spaces. Then she could use one small chest or buffet with a picture above it which would make an odd wall seem of more importance than it really is.

As for the walls, we'd like a toile de Jouy type of wall paper with the design in blue on ivory ground... if she could find a coloring of similar pattern and color, that would be lovely for the curtains. (Or do as some of the decorators do now—use the toile de Jouy chintz for walls and windows both!) Or just use glass curtains of plain ivory marquisette with the toile patterned wall paper. Add contrast by the use of brilliant pottery on the shelves of the corner cupboards and in the picture over the chest or buffet.

Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Boykin, in care of The Atlanta Constitution, for each bulletin if you'd like to have copies of "Curtain Calls for Pleasant Windows" and "Directions for Making Curtains and Draperies." (Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution.)

"WARM AWAY" the tightness of your child's CHEST COLD

When a chest cold brings your child that "congested feeling," rub on Penetro for quick, comforting relief. Because Penetro is super-medicated with 113% to 227% more medication than any other nationally sold cold salve, it creates thorough counter-irritant action to increase blood flow and stimulate greater body heat. That's why Penetro makes cold discomfort feel so much easier.

Not only does Penetro help to create this increased body heat but because it is made with an animal fat base of mutton suet, it helps to "hold in" this heat by conserving and concentrating it. The aromatic vapors of Penetro are inhaled into nasal passages to open up stuffy noses, make breathing easier. Trial size, 10c. Economy size jars, 35c, 60c, and $1. At dealers everywhere.

Sweet Briar College Classmate Will Visit Mrs. Robert Whatley

By Sally Forth.

IT'S A good thing the Southern Medical Association is meeting this week, according to Mrs. Robert Whatley. You see, 20 members of the Junior League have been working for days in her guest room preparing that wonderful diorama now on exhibit at the medical convention in New Orleans. And as Anne Lane (as Mrs. Whatley is known to her intimates) was expecting a visitor, she needed her guest room very much.

The visitor, by the way, is none other than the vivacious little blonde whom you remember as "Susie" Talbot, who took Atlanta by storm one Christmas when she came home with Anne Lane from Sweet Briar, where both were in school. "Susie" is now Mrs. Terry Keep, of New York, but she has lost none of the attractiveness and originality that fairly captivated society on that first visit, according to Anne Lane. So her arrival is anticipated with eagerness and interest.

But to get back to the exhibit which is creating such a sensation in medical circles in New Orleans! Helen Bivings Loyless and Josephine Meador left on Sunday to take it to the Crescent City, where they set it up in the municipal auditorium immediately upon arrival and are in daily attendance to explain it to the 1,500 physicians present. Helen, you know, is the capable chairman of the thyroid clinic at Grady hospital, which is one of the philanthropic projects maintained by the Junior League, and Josephine is one of the splendid workers.

The exhibit, which is the only one of its kind on view at the convention, is entitled "A Survey of Goiter in a Non-Endemic Area." The diorama, in case you don't know, is a three-dimensional container displaying to advantage 48 photographic enlargements showing different phases of the glandular disease, charts of analytical data indicating methods of classifying goiter in the local clinic, graphs of blood iodine tests, posters showing research work in the laboratory, and a map of Georgia showing the prevalence of the disease in the state.

Doesn't it all sound impressive? But have you ever known of anything undertaken by Junior League girls that was not done in a thorough and impressive manner?

NOT until after the departure of Margaret Chenoweth for her home in Birmingham did Sally Forth hear of the trio of green and white orchids sent to the popular visitor by air mail special delivery from New York last Sunday. The beautiful blooms arrived in time for Margaret to wear them to the Ivan Allen breakfast, which was an important event of that day. According to florist rating, green and white orchids are among the rarest examples of this exotic flower, as well as the most expensive.

It happened that Margaret's date for the breakfast party was one of Atlanta's most popular swains, who is noted for his wit. As the lovely visitor and her escort departed for the breakfast, Mrs. Harrison Jones, whom the Birmingham belle was visiting, remarked to Mr. Blank that he would get credit for sending Margaret the costly orchids. Mr. Blank replied, "Here's hoping that none of my creditors will see us."

Margaret's Atlanta friends said goodbye reluctantly to her Monday, but exacted a promise that she will return for Laura Hill's debut party, scheduled for December 21. Margaret and Laura, you know, were classmates at Finch school and traveled together last summer to the "Land of the Midnight Sun."

Margaret returned to Birmingham with countless memories of her Atlanta visit. From the minute she arrived until her departure the Birmingham belle was winced and dined. Sally hears that Margaret was so much in demand for luncheons and dinner parties that she was not present at the home of her hostess for more than two meals. As a parting gift, Mrs. Jones presented her guest with a memory book in which was recorded the score of place cards, bearing Margaret's name, flower cards with senders' names, invitations to parties, newspaper accounts of her Atlanta visit, etc.

WHEN Mrs. Chauncey Smith entertains at tea this afternoon for Minna McLeod Beck, the affair will assume the appearance of an impromptu art exhibit. The honor guest, who is a noted artist, will have on exhibit a number of her pencil drawings of fa-

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

NEWS FROM THE STUDIOS.
HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 1.—The football season is just over, but already Hollywood is preparing its football screen epics for next season. First in the annual race to announce plans for the film game and register the title is Paramount, which has bought the story, "Give 'Em the Ax," based on the strong football feud between Stanford and the University of California. Jack Benny is scheduled for the role of coach, which makes it a definite comedy. Ben Blue, Martha Raye, Rufe Davis and all available Paramount funders will be somehow fitted into the film. Shooting begins next summer, which gives Mr. Benny plenty of time to appear in "Never Felt Better," the story of a hypochondriac.

Irene Dunne gets a completely different type of leading man in R.-K.-O.-Radio's "Joy of Loving." Douglas Fairbanks Jr., who replaces Cary Grant as the object of Miss Dunne's affections. The story, with music by Jerome Kern, concerns a gentleman (Fairbanks) who disinherits himself, buys a tramp steamer and meets up with a stage actress (Miss Dunne), who owns a typical stage mother (Alice Brady) and father (Guy Kibbee). Fairbanks endeavors to change Irene's mode of living—but not without opposition from her loving parents. Also in the picture are twins, Estelle and Dorothy Steiner, who, according to Discoverer Tay Garnett, sing, dance, act, and generally make themselves nuisances throughout the film.

Hal Roach is plenty worried about the copyright infringement suit recently filed against him in federal court. The recent copyright judgment against the Marx Brothers has caused great uneasiness in Hollywood and stricter supervision of the studio rule forbidding the opening of unsolicited manuscripts.

Without waiting for the public's verdict on "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," Walt Disney has started production on his second feature animated cartoon—"Bambi." Felix Salten's story of a white deer and little girl, Mr. Disney is very confident that "Snow White," on which he has worked three years and spent $2,000,000, will repay his investment with a turnover of between four and five millions.

Potted notes of the week. . . . Kay Francis is getting into physical training—i. e., dieting—for her next film, "All Rights Reserved," with Joan Blondell and George Brent. Production begins the middle of January. . . . David Selznick is reported to be exceedingly angry with the advance publicity on "Jezebel." The story is too much like "Gone with the Wind" to please him. But Warner insists that "Jezebel" was produced on the stage years before the best seller was even thought of. . . . Myrna Loy has at last signed that new long-term contract with M.-G.-M. Her next film will be "Test Pilot," with Clark Gable.

Bob Hope will have to be twins to fulfill all his Paramount assignments. The latest is "Cocoanut Grove," a saga of the famous Los Angeles dance palace, and will also feature Shirley Ross, Ben Blue and the Yacht Club boys. Ray Milland has cancelled his plans to visit his mother in London over the holidays, and, instead, will go semipermanent in "Ensenada," with Dorothy Lamour. Don Ameche, originally borrowed from Twentieth Century-Fox for this role, gets a raise check for another Paramount picture some time next year.

Now that Harry Cohn and Frank Capra have kissed and made up (not to mention the payment to Frank of the $100,000 he said was owing him), the path is now clear to film "You Can't Take It with You," for the film rights of which Mr. Cohn paid $200,000. . . . Ilona Massey replaces Jeanette MacDonald as the singing lead in "Balalaika," with Nelson Eddy as her singing opposite. (Jeanette is said to be a trifle peeved.) Incidentally, a balalaika is a first cousin to a guitar. . . . The Quintuplets' next film is titled "Mother Knows Best," which seems to this correspondent to contain a dash of irony. The babies will speak American for the first time in their film careers. (Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution.)

The society pledged its support to the proposed state botanical garden, and will undertake the collection of mounted specimens of Georgia's native trees and shrubs, which will later be placed in the Department of Archives in Rhodes Memorial Hall.

Mrs. Rees presented to the Georgia branch a copy of the national society lineage book to which she has added a complete index and had bound in the colors of the S. D. P. with the insignia stamped in gold. This volume was awarded to the Georgia branch, S. D. P., at the general court held in April, 1937, for outstanding work in membership.

Judge John D. Humphries presented to the society copies of "Georgia Descendants of Nathaniel

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondents invite your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I have been going with boys off and on all my life but have never been able to get to the point of marrying one. It seems that being married is the only way for a girl to attain happiness and frankly living alone doesn't appeal to me. After 35 what are a girl's best chances for matrimony? DORA.

ANSWER: After 35 a girl's best chances for matrimony lie in inducing an unintentional bachelor to change his mind, or in compromising on an unintentional bachelor who has been repeatedly turned down by the more choosy sisters, or in picking up a widower recently released and beginning to cut his eye around the corner for feminine attention and solace. To places of business and to church she can go without an escort but to the clubs and social gatherings she's almost shut out. So the office and the church are her best places from which to deploy.

But marriage isn't the only way of a girl's attaining happiness. Unless she gets the proper sort of husband marriage is the surest road to misery of all sorts. There's the trick in it. In her dreams she sees herself joined in the holy bonds of matrimony to a man who's a piece of the moon: a man attractive, protective, masterful, competent and congenial. One swift glance around should convince every maiden that fortune smiles to this extent on a limited number of females. The rest are muddling through in a manner much less alluring than her dream of matrimony describes.

Yet the average gal can get herself up to the point of marrying "one" if she can get "one" up to the point of pressing his suit. This is the point where the woman rate week look high. From a woman's point of view a happy marriage has in it all the best things of life: Close and comfortable companionship with a husband in their home, security, protection, an established place in society, children, normal family circle and the full experience of life. No wonder a woman takes to the idea!

Yet the bitter truth is that the law of supply and demand is fairly hairy as in some other instances. Some women take two or three husbands with facility while others fight a losing battle for one. The latter are the ones who will put their minds on other matters than marriage. There are other human relationships with family and friends that are quite satisfying. A woman who has a job, a hobby or two, a pet, an interest in books, music, drama or sports can put in pleasantly all the hours she should devote to self pleasure. And if she's doing anything for others and for the good of society there's a pretty full and pretty well rounded life.

Certainly a woman can attain happiness, lead a full and useful life outside matrimony, yet she must prefer to walk the road to romance with a Prince Charming if only she can locate the Prince and show him the road.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

TVACOST TOO HIGH, WITNESS TESTIFIES

Ex-Army Engineer Says Expenditures 6 Times Greater Than Necessary.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 1. (AP)—Rufus W. Putnam, former major in the United States army engineers, testified before a three-judge federal court today that cost of the Tennessee Valley Authority's system of dams will be six times more than is necessary for improved navigation on the Tennessee river and its tributaries.

Putnam's testimony was the partial answer of 18 private utilities attacking the authority on a TVA contention that navigation and flood control—not power generation—are its chief functions.

He estimated the TVA dams will cost "more than $475,000,000 exclusive of Wilson dam." The low dam system, he said, would cost only $74,709,000.

The engineer, who qualified as an expert witness, said the completed TVA system will be "adequate" but added that a low dam system "which would cost only one-sixth of the TVA system" would provide greater navigation capacity.

"The capacity for usual traffic between Knoxville and points on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers would be the same because of limitations imposed by locks at Wilson dam," he said.

PREMIER ASSAILS RULE BY DICTATOR

Nova Scotia Leader Speaks to Charleston Clubs.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Dec. 1. (UP)—Premier Angus L. MacDonald, of Nova Scotia, today denounced the dictatorial suppression of individual rights and credited democracy with having preserved friendly relations between the United States and Canada during the last 125 years.

MacDonald spoke at a luncheon given in his honor by Charleston civic clubs.

The premier said that "while a dictatorship may get things done in a hurry, it exacts too great a price."

"Canada, working with freedom and unity with the 'mother country,' and the United States, upholding the democracy gained in 1776, will teach the world a lesson in the art of good will and fellowship rather than might," MacDonald predicted.

The premier, who has visited here for the past four days, will depart tomorrow for Florence, S. C. Later he will visit Florida MacDonald College, at Red Spring, N. C., returning to Halifax early next week.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 1. (AP)—The research vessel "Atlantis," of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, will spend a month this winter in Cuban waters collecting fish specimens.

The Harvard University Museum of Comparative Zoology and the University of Havana will sponsor the trip, museum officials said tonight.

The "Atlantis" will leave Woods Hole December 28. After engaging in hydrographic work and fish collecting in the vicinity of Bermuda and the Bahamas, the vessel will reach Havana about mid-January. The trip is scheduled to end about February 22 at Havana.

W. C. Schroeder, associate curator of fishes of the Museum of Comparative Zoology, will be in charge of the work, assisted by Dr. Luis Rivero, Dr. Guillermo Aguayo and Dr. Pedro Bermudez, of the University of Havana.

Her mother and three sisters remained under observation at the hospital. Exposed to the disease, they were ordered to the hospital by county health officials.

EX-TRIBE CHIEF HELD IN BEAUTY'S SLAYING

Restaurant Operator Denies Killing Wife; Court Sets Bond at $5,000.

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., Dec. 1. (AP)—A three-magistrate court ordered Jasper Smile, 45-year-old restaurant operator, held under $5,000 bond today to answer a charge that he killed his beautiful young wife, Rukina.

Smile came to this country in 1928, he said, following revolutionary activities as a tribal chieftain in Syria.

Townpeople—stirred by the death of the 23-year-old woman who had become a popular figure about town—crowded every corner of the courtroom during the preliminary hearing for the defendant. Smile contended his wife either shot herself accidentally or committed suicide.

Sheriff Moreland said a new warrant was sworn out just before the hearing charging the husband with the murder. A question had arisen over the validity of the original charges.

"The magistrates denied a defense motion to dismiss the case."

Mrs. Smile was shot last week while out in a cornfield, it was reported she died "by her own hand" but the sheriff refused to accept the finding.

PARTLY CLOUDY SKIES PREDICTED FOR TODAY

Partly cloudy skies, with little change in temperature, are included in Atlanta's weather outlook for today, Forecaster George W. Minding predicted yesterday.

The temperature reading this morning is expected to be near 34 degrees. The mercury yesterday fluctuated between 37 and 57 degrees. Frost extended as far south as Pensacola, Fla.

The coldest November weather since 1903 was recorded at Atlanta this year, the weatherman revealed. The average temperature for the south was near 47.5 degrees, while the normal is 52.1 degrees. Records show that this low average has occurred very few times in the history of the local weather bureau.

Crackers Purchase Rookie Left-Hander, Pezzullo, of Indians

Cash and Player Given for Savannah Ace Who Hurled No-Hitter.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 1.—The Crackers started the ball rolling today in the trading mart at the minor league meeting by purchasing John Pezzullo, a fine rookie lefthander from the Savannah Indians of the Sally League.

Cash and a Cracker player to be selected by Bobby LaMotte, of the Indians, during the spring training camp at Savannah were involved in the deal.

The Crackers are buying Pezzullo, who won 14 and lost seven for Savannah, on a conditional agreement. They will have until May 15 to look him over.

MANN RENAMED BOARD MEMBER

Represents 'A' and 'A-1' Leagues; Prothro Buys Jersey Joe Dwyer.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 1.—Some more of that Earl Mann power came out of the meeting today in the form of an announcement that he has been named to serve three more years on the executive committee of the National Association of Baseball Clubs. Mann represents all the class A and A-1 leagues.

One rather well founded rumor is to the effect that when Southern League directors install Dan He as president—it may be done here as a formality—Gene Laving, of Charlotte, a young newspaperman who has had considerable experience, will succeed Hill as president of the Piedmont League.

Doc Prothro came up with a fine announcement for Little Rock. He revealed outright purchase of Joe Dwyer, former Nashville star outfielder, from the Jersey City club. Dwyer finished one point behind Fred Sington in hitting in the Southern League a couple of seasons back.

Dixie Bibb Graves To See Bowl Game

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. (AP)—Senator Dixie Bibb Graves apparently was the only member of Alabama's delegation giving thought tonight to the game of the Crimson Tide's football game against the University of California New Year's Day.

Mrs. Graves said she would accompany her governor husband if he goes. Other Alabamians said the January 3 convening of congress would prevent their making the trip.

WIRE LINES FACE ANTI-TRUST SUIT

Conspiracy To Monopolize Is Charged to Western Union and Postal.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. (AP)—Attorney General Cummings invoked the anti-trust laws today against the Western Union and Postal Telegraph systems, accusing them of conspiring to monopolize the telegraph business.

He asked the federal district court for southern New York to enjoin the two companies and their affiliates from enforcing contracts with railroads, hotels and others which give them exclusive privileges.

Defendants in the litigation include former Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, a trustee of the Postal Telegraph Corporation; Clarence H. Mackay, chairman of the board of Postal Telegraph, and J. C. Williver, first vice president in charge of Western Union's commercial department.

Specifically, Cummings charged that the defendants had conspired to prevent other telegraph companies from erecting poles along railroad rights-of-way, from using railroad stations and from establishing telegraph offices in hotels, clubs and public and private buildings.

COMPANIES WELCOME GOVERNMENT'S SUIT

NEW YORK, Dec. 1. (AP)—The federal government's anti-trust suit against Postal Telegraph and Western Union elicited statements today from R. C. Kramer, trustee of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Corporation, and Adolph Salinger, secretary of the bondholders' committee of Postal Telegraph, that they welcome the proceeding as a means of solving the industry's many difficult problems.

In an effort to clear up several recent robberies, Detectives B. E. Blair and E. B. McNaughton have requested all persons in the city who have been robbed by negroes during the last three months to come to police headquarters at 8 o'clock tonight.

During the last week about 10 negroes have been arrested, four of whom have admitted participation in robberies. Detectives are looking for the balance of the group to have certain of the negroes identified in connection with particular robberies. Several of the negroes have admitted participation in robberies which have not been reported, the detectives said.

Harry Mehre Resigns as Head Football Coach at Georgia

A GUEST COLUMN

By Jack Troy

Editor's Note—In the absence of Ralph McGill, today's guest column is written by Jack Troy, assistant sports editor of The Constitution.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 1.—Rebel yells, loud and prolonged, startled the stolid German citizenry early this morning and during the day.

Alabama's selection as California's opponent in the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena on New Year's Day caused the southern delegation to the national minor league baseball meeting to drop everything else and give three rousing "rahs" and a "tiger" for Frank Thomas and his Crimson Tide.

Riggs Stephenson, Old Hoss, who played at Alabama not so many years ago, acted as cheerleader. It was a real tonic to Old Hoss, who is here seeking employment as a manager.

"Yea-h-h-h, Bama!" rung through the city streets and reverberated over the icy waters of Lake Michigan as young children, frightened by the vociferous demonstration, clutched their mothers' apron strings. The Milwaukee people had to excuse us. It was our night to howl. And we did.

Now that Alabama has secured the bid, despite all the written allegations of inferior social rating, alleged wholesale proselyting, and so on, it will be up to California to prove its claim to greatness and its Pacific coast designation as a "dream and wonder team."

The Golden Bears trampled all opposition, of course, except Washington's Huskies, who tied 'em, on the coast this year. Vic Bottari, John Meek, Sam Chapman and Company rode roughshod over the opposition, winning by goodly margins.

But it is now a question of stopping Alabama. No southern teams could do it. And George Washington, of Washington, D. C., beaten handsily by Alabama, tied Arkansas' fleet, versatile and deadly passing Razorbacks. Alabama has plenty of the football and a young fellow named Sanford on the bench. The Crimson Tide is just about as resourceful as they come.

They are a shining example of the old truth that a team that won't be beat can't be beat.

TECH DID IT—SO CAN ALABAMA.

Georgia Tech defeated California rather handsily in a post-season game in Atlanta last year. Vic Bottari, a great passer, was hurt and played only the last five or six minutes.

But that is aside from the case: Tech had a fine defense against passes and so does Alabama. It is expected that power will worry the Tidesmen more than anything else. Meek and Chapman are strong runners. And the California line, a huge affair, is noted for opening holes.

They still talk on the coast about California coming to Atlanta just for the ride and caring more about scenery than the actual game. But that is, of course, a lot of nonsense. Stub Allison and his boys bitterly regretted another loss to a southern team. They were out on Grant field shooting to win. But Tech had just a bit better ball club.

The power personified by Meek and Chapman did not phase the Golden Jackets and they proved that against passes the Golden Bears may not have something there.

TIDE WILL GET SET FOR POWER.

Alabama's selection brings to mind the question Red Drew, Alabama line coach, put to Lynn Waldorf, coach of Northwestern, following the Tide's victory over Vanderbilt's Commodores.

"How would we fare against a team like, say Minnesota?" he asked. Waldorf was tactful and said it might be a close game. But Bert Ingersen, his assistant who formerly coached at Iowa, spoke up quickly and said, "Minnesota? They'd wreck you if the Alabama tackles played the sort of game they did against Vanderbilt."

Here's an easy answer to that one, however. Vandy had no powerful runners. And they did have shifty runners like Bert Marshall, Jim Huggins, Hollins and a couple of others.

The Bama tacklers were instructed to play a sort of pat-pat game on defense and slide with the runner. There was no need to play a hard-charging type of game to stop power. Because Vandy had none.

The Tide has a fine line. There is no weakness from end to end and it will be no hard matter at all to get set for power.

The secondary is experienced, alert and resourceful. So getting set against passes will not prove very difficult either. In a pinch, Bama can call on Sandy Sanford to kick. He hasn't missed a vet. and it isn't likely that a Rose Bowl crowd would worry him any.

The Vandy players on the bench rode him when he tried that field goal against them from approximately a 45-degree angle. He kicked it right through the middle and about 10 feet above the posts.

The Crimson Tide is plenty resourceful and no one need worry about how it will fare against California's Golden Bears. No Bama team ever has played a bad game on the coast. And there is no good reason why the present one shouldn't come through with another victory.

PITT HOLDS THE BAG.

All that talk of future purity and so on that Pittsburgh athletic authorities were responsible for probably enabled Alabama to get the Rose Bowl bid after the Panther players struck for expense money.

Pitt is generally regarded as the finest team in the country, but the season's over now, and it's just as fine a time as any for the athletic heads to start in on their idea of luring scholars out for the team.

Pitt is left holding the well-known sack. And not a snipe in sight.

HARRY MEHRE.

Atlanta baseball men, learning of Harry Mehre's resignation at Georgia, joined in wishing him well at any future coaching job he may take. Harry was quite a Cracker fan.

One of the finer gentlemen and a credit to his profession, Mehre was a favorite with the Atlanta club. Injuries hurt the Bulldogs during the season but the team staged another great November comeback, defeating Tulane and tying Auburn and Tech.

TECH HI SOUGHT FOR SUGAR BOWL CURTAIN RAISER

Efforts Being Made To Bring Northern Team Here With Smithies.

Barrons To Stage Charity Grid Game

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—

Two former Georgia Tech halfbacks—the Barron brothers, Carter and "Red"—are getting together to give the capital a football game for the children's lunch fund. Carter, chief baker for the local Variety Club, is organizing a team of Washington high school stars to meet the strong Monroe, Georgia A. & M. gridders, coached by his brother.

The game will be played here December 19, proceeds going to the fund which provides lunches for Washington's underprivileged pupils. "We hope," said the Washington Barron, "to raise $12,000 for the fund."

By ROY WHITE.

Tech High's city and state championship football team Wednesday was awaiting answers to several queries concerning a post-season game January 1.

The Smithies are being sought for a curtain-raiser to the Santa Clara-L. S. U. Sugar Bowl game. It was learned Wednesday and several schools with outstanding records in and close to New Orleans are very much interested in the proposed game.

Last week a high school game in New Orleans drew close to 23,000 spectators and a curtain-raiser to the Sugar Bowl game certainly would draw at least 25,000 spectators.

JUST LIKE ALABAMA.

Tech High finished the season undefeated and untied, for its best record since 1933 when the G. I. A. title was won.

Efforts were made Monday to get the Austin High eleven here for a game January 1, to inaugurate a city municipal stadium fund, but Austin already has contracted for a return game to Memphis December 11. The Chicago faculty voted for only one post-season game for Austin this year.

W. O. Cheney, principal of Tech High, originated the idea of Atlanta city champion each year playing some outstanding high school team for the benefit of a city municipal stadium fund.

It is one of the most worthwhile movements started in Atlanta and all the other city schools are very much in favor of the plan and will be glad of the opportunity to help provide a playing field for Atlanta high school teams.

Since the Sugar Bowl preliminary has come up, Cheney is more favorable to that idea now than of the January 1 game here. It will give the Smithies a chance for a nice trip, as a reward for their winning 11 straight games and also give Sugar Bowl fans a glimpse of Atlanta's brand of high school football.

Florida Is Crippled For Kentucky Tilt

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Red McChesney, big junior fullback, turned in his football uniform today, forced out of the University of Florida squad by a sprained wrist.

With the last game of the season set for Saturday against the Kentucky Wildcats, the added injury threw four first-string positions open to keen competition.

John Crabtree and Gordon Gardner are candidates for Goff's tackle post, and William Howell, a junior, and Jack Maynard, sophomore, hope for Pennington's last-game position.

California Quoted 10-to-7 Favorite

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 1.

(UP)—Residents of this Rose Bowl community tonight recovered from the hangover which usually accompanies selection of the New Year's Day game. The general reaction to the Alabama selection was one of little surprise in view of the tangled circumstances that preceded it. Veterans who have watched the games come and go expressed what seemed a widely held opinion: Alabama has been here four times and never has disappointed yet.

All signs pointed to renewal of the short odds which previously have greeted an invading Alabama eleven, and which usually left the visitors holding a paper bag. The first figures installed the new California "wonder" team as a probable favorite 10-7. These will fluctuate considerably.

The Tide's record in the bowl is the strongest ever run up by an "eastern" team. On each occasion the Alabama boys have been made the underdogs, yet they won three games and tied one, defeating Washington, Washington State and Stanford, and deadlocking 7-7 with Stanford.

TWO OPEN DATES ON 1938 JACKET GRID SCHEDULE

L. S. U. Eager To Come Here, But It's Impossible in 1938.

By BILL MUNDAY.

At some moment between now and publication time Sunday, Coach William A. Alexander will acquaint an avid press and an anxious fandom of his warfare plans next fall. And his belligerent maps will be most ambitious. That much is assured.

Consider: He has two intersectional contests of strenuous testing booked: Notre Dame at South Bend on his second date and the University of California, Rose Bowl nominee this year, sometime around Christmas. And unless home-and-home contracts are cancelled he is due to engage Alabama, another Rose Bowl choice of 1937, here; Vanderbilt at Nashville; Georgia at Athens; University of Kentucky here; Duke at Durham, and Florida in Atlanta. Auburn also is on the menu for an Atlanta imbroglio.

Regular season dates leave two open spaces. We wonder who will fill them. We know that Clemson is anxious to be back on the "jacket" schedule. Last season the Tigers downed the geists of the Flats, 14 to 13. This year, after a whirlwind encounter, they were trimmed by a last quarter touchdown, 7 to 0. But they were in the fray all the way.

It has been rumored that L. S. U. constituents would like to see their men on Tech's schedule. Nothing would please them better than the sight of their famous 208-piece band parading up Peachtree and their splendid gridiron array in action at Grant field.

A game between L. S. U. and Georgia Tech is many years away.

That from Dr. A. H. Armstrong, faculty chairman of athletics, at the training school of engineers and gentlemen.

"You see," the genial doctor explained, "our schedules are arranged by contract years in advance on a home-and-home basis. We are about signed up until 1942 but may have a free Saturday somewhere around 1940."
